Snow, Rain Continue In Rockies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Storms over the northern Rockies continued to develop and move southward today.

Snow hit the higher elevations of western Montana and northern Idaho with rain and snow mixed at lower levels.

Heavy snow warnings continued in effect for today for the northern mountains of Idaho and the mountains and foothills of Montana. A winter storm watch was on for the Colorado mountains.

Lighter storm precipitation extended to the Pacific northwest coast.

Other rainfall included scattered thundershowers and showers in Arizona and New Mexico. A few showers hit northeast New York reaching into New Hampshire and also in southern Florida.

Montana temperatures in the 30s made it the coldest area of the nation this morning.

In contrast, warm air moved from the southern and central plains into the middle Mississippi and Ohio valleys.

Clouds covered a large part of the country. The only large area of clear skies reached from the east Gulf Coast through the Tennessee valley and mid-Atlantic coast states.

Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms from Texas through Oklahoma and Arkansas into western Louisiana. Cool temperatures with showers and snow in the mountains were predicted, for the northern half of the Pacific coast through the northern Rockies, with snow in Montana and rain in the Dakotas and western Nebraska.

The forecast said sunny to partly cloudy skies and mild temperatures for the rest of the nation.

Franco 'Improving'

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco had a satisfactory night and is continuing to improve following an acute heart attack two nights ago, his doctors reported today.

However, speculation continued that Franco was nearing the end of his long rule, and political sources predicted Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon would replace him as chief of state within weeks or even days.

Franco was visited early today by his chief physician, Dr. Vicente Pozuelo.

The government denied reports abroad that Western Europe's last dictator had died on Tuesday, and officially he was still in power. But he was in seclusion at his Pardo Palace just outside Madrid, and a high diplomatic source said his condition was grave.

Already afflicted with Parkinson's disease, the 82-year-old leader who has ruled Spain with an iron hand for 36 years became ill last Thursday with influenza.

His doctors were reported to have detected fluctuations in his heart beat at the time, and on Monday night he reportedly suffered an attack of endocarditis, or inflammation of the heart valves.

A two-paragraph announcement told Spain's 35 million people Tuesday that their leader had suffered an "acute coronary crisis" but was recovering and had resumed some of his normal activities.

Vicente Cardinal Enrique Tarancon, the archbishop of Madrid, asked the public to pray for Franco and for the future of the country.

There was no reaction from the public. But the gravity of the generalissimo's illness was evidenced by two long visits to his residence Tuesday by Premier Carlos Arias Navarro and by the concern of the government in denying the reports of his death.

Informed sources said Franco and the premier discussed whether to transfer the powers of the chief of state to the 37-year-old prince Franco designated six years ago to succeed him when he died or retired.

Franco made just such a transfer of his powers 15 months ago when an attack of blood clotting nearly killed him. But he resumed his office after 40 days.

The law of succession provides that in the event of Franco's death, the Cortes, or parliament, has eight days to proclaim Juan Carlos Spain's first king since his grandfather, King Alfonso XIII, fled from the country in 1931.

Juan Carlos did not go to El Pardo Tuesday but met with Arias immediately after the premier's second visit to Franco. The prince also lunched with the president of the Cortes, Alejandro Rodriguez de Valcarcel.

Council Turns Down Chance To Acquire Confiscated Car

Circleville Council defeated an ordinance to acquire a 1974 automobile confiscated when its owner was convicted of using the vehicle while selling drugs.

Because the convicted man was arrested by city police, the city was given first chance to acquire the automobile by paying a $2,350 lien against it. Mayor Frank Barnhill has suggested the car be used by various members of city government but be under the control of police.

Tuesday's action opens the way for Pickaway County commissioners to acquire the vehicle by paying the lien should they have a use for it.

Council took the negative action Tuesday because they felt the city did not need the car. Because it is a two-door, its use would be limited for governmental purposes council decided.

Chief of Police Robert Temple announced that bids for a new police cruiser will be opened Nov. 14. He reported that a car damaged recently is being repaired.

Council appropriated $250 from the capital improvement fund to purchase a second-hand refrigerator-freezer for the fire department. The refrigerator presently used by the firemen no longer works.

A number of transfers of funds were approved as follows:

$3,850 from the general fund to the hospital and medical account to pay the city's share of Blue Cross and Blue Shield;

$2,641.13 from water works operating fund to pay the city's share of PERS for water department employees;

$3,251.24 from the general fund to pay the city's share of PERS;

$1,107 from street construction and maintenance to pay the city's share of PERS for employees in the service department.

Council also approved the purchase of a traffic control device for the intersection of Nicholas Drive and Clark Ave. A traffic signal for the intersection is a part of the Nicholas Drive Improvement project and has been long sought by the residents of the area and those parents who have children walking to school.

A standard resolution accepting the amounts and rates of taxes and bond retirement as established by the Pickaway County Budget Commission was approved.

Chief of Police Temple informed council he had conducted an investigation of a request for a C-1 Liquor License by Jim's Super Duper and saw no reason to object to the issuance of the license. However, he stated that he thought the city's quota for such licenses was presently filled and it would be up to Ohio Liquor Control Department authorities to make the decision on the issuance.

Mayor Frank Barnhill credited members of the fire department, police department, service department and water department with doing an excellent job during Pumpkin Show of fire control, law enforcement and cleanup.

The mayor also alerted council to the fact that a major restoration of the fire department including sandblasting, and repair of roof, gutters, downspout and painting and repair of all trim is being studied. The project is earmarked for next summer.

Safety Director Ed Ebert reported that furnace work and plumbing at firehouse Number 2 has been completed and the carpenters will start remodeling soon.

Service Director Atwood Jones reported the leaf pickup has started and that lights on Franklin Street would be installed soon. In response to a question from council president Joseph Bell, Jones said the park board is responsible for maintenance of lights at the southend playground. He noted the Columbus and Southern Ohio electric company and the park board are considering removing the lights because of the high cost of maintenance. The lights are a frequent target of vandalism.

Present for council meeting were members Ben Gordon, Dave Crawford, Tom Wells, David Goldschmidt, John Jenkins, Harold Hoffman, Dixie Watters, Bell, clerk Robert Shadley, Mayor Barnhill.

2 American Workers Nabbed During Fighting In Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two American Embassy officers were kidnapped today at a street barricade manned by fighters in Lebanon's religious and political war between Christians and Moslems.

They were identified by an embassy spokesman as Charles Gallagher, 44, of Roanoke, Va., and William Dykes Jr., 50, of San Jose Calif., the director and deputy director respectively of the U.S. Information Agency printing facility in Beirut.

The two were grabbed about 7 a.m. as they drove to work in an embassy car with diplomatic license plates, the spokesman said. There was no indication who the abductors were, he added.

Kidnaping has been a frequent weapon of right-wing Christians, leaving Moslems and radical Palestine guerrilla supporters of the Lebanese Moslems. The two sides have been locked in street battles for the last seven months.

The two were stopped by unidentified armed men at a roadblock on the Corniche alMazraa, a broad avenue that leads from a high-class seaside neighborhood through Moslem districts. Two major Palestinian guerrilla groups have headquarters on the avenue.

A Lebanese employee who was with the Americans was released and brought word of the kidnaping to the Embassy.

The spokesman said there was no word from the kidnapers, but Embassy security officers were in touch with the Lebanese police.

4 To Join Aviation Hall Of Fame

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Four aviation pioneers are to be enshrined in the Aviation Hall of Fame in ceremonies here Nov. 22. Two of them will be installed posthumously.

They will join 58 others enshrined over the past 14 years, including the Wright Brothers, Eddie Rickenbacker, Wiley Post, Amelia Earhart and Charles Lindbergh.

Scheduled for induction are: Reuben Hollis Fleet, 81, of Palm Springs, Calif., Air Mail Pilot No. 1, whose Consolidated Aircraft Corp. later developed the famous B-24 Liberator bomber of World War II. He developed and manufactured primary trainers, seaplanes and multiengine bombers. He was chief of flying service for the infant Air Service. He organized the first airmail service between Washington and New York.

Frank Luke Jr., deceased, a native of Phoenix, Ariz., who destroyed 18 enemy aircraft in 17 days during World War I and never returned from a 1918 flight to Verdun. Known as the "balloon buster from Arizona," he was the first airman to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Robert Campbell Reeve, 73, of Anchorage, Alaska, president of Reeve Aleutian Airways, who pioneered airline routes in South America before going to Alaska in 1932—after a bout with polio—and helped convert a rugged country into the Alaska of today.

Roscoe Turner, deceased, who acted as honorary chairman of Aviation of Hall of Fame ceremonies in 1968 and was a three-time winner of the famous Thompson Trophy Race and, along with Jimmy Doolittle, was the only pilot to win both the Thompson and Bendix Trophies.

Cartoonist Milton Caniff, a native of Dayton and a member of the 102-man board of nominations, has sketched portraits of the 1975 enshrinees as he has for those previously.

The ceremonies will be held at the Dayton Convention Center.

Energy Compromise To Boost Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate may be ready to accept a compromise that would delay for several years the major consumer price increases expected to follow the removal of natural gas price controls.

But the price of gas would be allowed to rise moderately, even with Senate acceptance of the compromise by Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif. A vote was scheduled today on the measure.

Moving toward final passage of far-reaching natural gas legislation, the Senate also planned to vote today on two amendments that would force big oil-gas companies to divest some of their energy holdings.

The gas bill has two major sections. One is designed to avert a predicted gas shortage this winter. The other, supported by most Republicans and energy-state Democrats but bitterly opposed by liberals, would phase out all federal controls on natural-gas prices.

The bloc of Republicans and energy-state Democrats has shown several times that it has the votes to deregulate, or remove price controls.

The Republicans' proposal would end controls immediately on new gas produced from onshore wells after Jan. 1, 1975. Controls would end in 1985 on offshore gas, which is about 16 per cent of U.S. production. And controls on the "old gas" now under contract would end as soon as existing contract expires.

This "old" gas, about 70 per cent of U.S. production, is what most Americans use to heat their homes.

In an effort to soften the consumer impact of deregulation, Tunney offered his amendment to keep this gas under controls until the supply is exhausted.

Under the Republican plan of deregulation, the gas would be freed of controls forever once a contract expired. Most gas is purchased by pipelines from producers under contracts that average about 10 years.

The Tunney amendment would retain controls forever, but would direct the Federal Power Commission to raise the level of controlled prices.

The Senate voted 42 to 37 on Tuesday to limit the field price that will be permitted under emergency sales procedures aimed at averting a severe gas shortage this winter.

Under this plan, the huge interstate pipelines that serve most American homes, schools and factories would be allowed to buy gas this winter at field prices that could be six or seven times as high as the current average of about 32 cents per thousand cubic feet (mcf).

The Federal Energy Administration has forecast a shortage of about 4.5 per cent this winter — which would be one-third larger than last year's shortage. Officials say this cutback could throw another 500,000 Americans out of work.

The spokesman said there was no word from the kidnapers, but Embassy security officers were in touch with the Lebanese police.

Premier Rashid Karami received U.S. Ambassador G. McMurtrie Godley after getting word of the abduction.

It was the first known case of American residents in Beirut being kidnapped or killed during the 7-month-old street war between Lebanon's private Moslem and Christian militias.

Col. Edward R. Morgan of the U.S. military aid mission in Turkey was kidnapped last June 29 by radical Palestinian guerrillas during earlier fighting in Beirut. He was released unharmed on July 12 after the Lebanese government distributed food supplies in a poor district of the city.

Sniping delayed enforcement of an agreement to demilitarize three battle fronts in the street war today, but the government radio reported a "marked improvement" in security conditions.

"There are fewer unsafe roads in the city and the outskirts today than yesterday," said an announcer. "Police forces are dismantling road-blocks at a quicker pace."

Snipers kept the city's northern approaches closed, but the eastern approaches were declared open to traffic for the first time in three days.

Bursts of machine-gun fire were heard in various parts of the city during the morning following frequent explosions during the night. Newspapers reported two persons killed, including a pregnant woman.

The American, British and West German embassies took ads in the newspapers asking their nationals in Lebanon to register with them "to insure awareness of their continuing residence."

Father Pleads: Let Daughter Die

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — "Take her from the machine and the tubes connected to her and let her pass into the hands of the Lord," Karen Ann Quinlan's adoptive father pleaded with the court.

Karen Ann's mother was to take the stand today to repeat that plea, urging the court to allow doctors to disconnect a respirator that has kept their comatose daughter breathing for almost six months.

Julia Quinlan, a petite, red-haired mother of three, who has watched her vivacious 21-year-old daughter lapse into a "vegetative state," has asked that "Karen be allowed to die with dignity."

Briefs filed before the trial indicated Mrs. Quinlan will testify that her daughter said weeks before she became ill that if she ever became terminally ill, she wouldn't want to be kept alive by artificial means. The comments were made during a family discussion about two friends who were dying of cancer, according to the Quinlan's attorney, Paul W. Armstrong.

It has not been determined what caused Miss Quinlan's illness, but doctors who first treated her in April suspected she had used tranquilizers and liquor together at a party.

Her father, Joseph, testified before Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr. on Tuesday that he believes it is God's will that Karen should be removed from the respirator at St. Clare's Hospital so "nature can take its course. It's the Lord's will; for some reason he wants to take her."

"We had done everything possible to help her and now we have no hope," Quinlan said, recalling his feeling when doctors told him three months ago that his daughter's coma was irreversible.

Quinlan said that if the court grants his request, he will have a doctor remove the respirator as his family and parish priests watch at Miss Quinlan's bedside.

"If the court doesn't agree with me I don't know what I'll do," he said.

Two doctors who have cared for Miss Quinlan testified Monday that they would not disconnect the respirator, even if ordered to do so by the court. They said she is alive by all medical criteria.

The state has argued that it could be considered homicide to disconnect the respirator.

Dr. Julius Korein, a neurologist testifying for the Quinlans, said, "I and many of my colleagues do not believe in saving a life that will lie as a vegetable for 10 years."

And Korein said he believed the purpose of the Quinlan's case was to bring into the open and make legal what he termed "an unwritten practice among doctors," to withhold treatment from patients who have no hope of survival as normal human beings.

Korein said doctors treating terminally ill patients sometimes tell nurses such things as: "If this man stops breathing don't resuscitate him."

The Quinlan's action has been endorsed by priests at their local Roman Catholic church. On Tuesday, the chancellor of the Paterson Diocese endorsed the Quinlans' position.

Quinlan said he probably wouldn't have made the move had the church not told him it was morally correct.

Congress Moves To Boost Curbs On Bureaucracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency orders a reduction in parking places in Boston and Los Angeles. The Civil Aeronautics Board says the cost of an airline ticket to Miami can be increased. A boatyard owner is forced to install a safety ladder leading out of water three feet deep. A child's toy is declared unsafe.

These are some of the federal rules and regulations drawn by the staffs of 67 agencies. Last year, the agencies drew up 7,496 fresh regulations while Congress was enacting 404 laws.

The regulations have the force of law. They often carry criminal penalties of heavy fines and jail, and have one more thing in common: Congress never specifically approved them.

Instead, the regulations were drawn to implement broad mandates of Congress given at the time of passage of laws, for example, to clean up pollution, regulate airlines and to assure safety of workers.

Now, a move is under way to give Congress a legislative veto, broad power to set aside any rules or regulations with a negative vote of either house.

Congress has approved limited veto power in such cases as the rules of the Federal Election Commission. And it can always pass another law, as was the case in doing away with the regulatory requirement for car seat-belt interlock systems.

But passing a new law "is a cumbersome method," for dealing with the problem, says Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Ala. He's chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee which took the first testimony Tuesday on several bills that have the combined backing of one-third of the House membership.

Rep. Elliott H. Levitas, D-Ga., said the bureaucracy has become "a fourth, nonconstitutional branch of government with a thick tangle of regulations."

Still, the agencies have defenders. Rep. George Danielson, D-Calif., reckons that only 1 per cent of federal rules "are offensive." He did feel the proposed EPA parking regulations for Los Angeles "would have been like an atomic bomb hitting the Southern California economy." The rule was aimed at reducing automobile pollution.

As yet there is no uniform administration position. President Ford has often spoken against what he calls excessive federal interference in business affairs.

Turkish Ambassador Shot To Death

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Three men armed with submachine guns stormed into the Turkish Embassy at noon today and killed the ambassador, police and Foreign Ministry officials said. The three escaped in a white Mercedes-Benz.

Turkish diplomats told Austrian police they believed the killers of Danis Tunaligil, 60, were "English-speaking Greeks." But police said they had no independent information to confirm this.

Greece and Turkey have a long rivalry over Cyprus, which was worsened when Turkish forces invaded the Mediterranean island in July 1974. Turkish troops still occupy part of the island, which has a Turkish minority and Greek majority population.

The dead man was one of Turkey's leading diplomats. He had been ambassador to Vienna since November 1973.

Police and ambulances converged on the embassy, but an ambulance physician said Tunaligil was already dead.

"We don't know anything about the motive of the assailants," a member of the embassy staff told The Associated Press.

He said the embassy had no idea whether the assault was a political crime, or directed against the ambassador personally. It was not immediately known how the assailant reached the ambassador's office.

"We still have differing reports on what actually occurred before the ambassador was shot and killed," said a police spokesman. "We know that the three men, armed with submachine guns, entered the embassy around 12 o'clock (7 a.m. EDT)."

He said the ambassador was killed by "several bullets" fired from the submachine guns.

The official described one of the attackers as about 5 feet 3 and about 25 years old. He said there was confusion about the license plate on the escape car.

Tunaligil was married and the father of a 15-year-old daughter.

After university studies in Istanbul, Tunaligil entered the diplomatic service in 1939. He served in Milan, Italy, and Berne, Switzerland, before becoming ambassador to Rome in 1948.

In 1952, Tunaligil became section chief in the Turkish Foreign Ministry and two years later was appointed charge d'affaires in Moscow. In 1960 he took over as ambassador to Jordan and in 1964 went to Belgrade.

Between 1968 and 1970 he was political director in the Turkish Foreign Ministry. Tunaligil came to Vienna after serving as ambassador to The Hague.

Father Pleads: Let Daughter Die

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — "Take her from the machine and the tubes connected to her and let her pass into the hands of the Lord," Karen Ann Quinlan's adoptive father pleaded with the court.

Karen Ann's mother was to take the stand today to repeat that plea, urging the court to allow doctors to disconnect a respirator that has kept their comatose daughter breathing for almost six months.

Julia Quinlan, a petite, redhaired mother of three, who has watched her vivacious 21-year-old daughter lapse into a "vegetative state," has asked that "Karen be allowed to die with dignity."

Briefs filed before the trial indicated Mrs. Quinlan will testify that her daughter said weeks before she became ill that if she ever became terminally ill, she wouldn't want to be kept alive by artificial means. The comments were made during a family discussion about two friends who were dying of cancer, according to the Quinlan's attorney, Paul W. Armstrong.

It has not been determined what caused Miss Quinlan's illness, but doctors who first treated her in April suspected she had used tranquilizers and liquor together at a party.

Her father, Joseph, testified before Superior Court Judge Robert Muir Jr. on Tuesday that he believes it is God's will that Karen should be removed from the respirator at St. Clare's Hospital so "nature can take its course. It's the Lord's will; for some reason he wants to take her."

"We had done everything possible to help her and now we have no hope," Quinlan said, recalling his feeling when doctors told him three months ago that his daughter's coma was irreversible.

Quinlan said that if the court grants

his request, he will have a doctor remove the respirator as his family and parish priests watch at Miss Quinlan's bedside.

"If the court doesn't agree with me I don't know what I'll do," he said.

Two doctors who have cared for Miss Quinlan testified Monday that they would not disconnect the respirator, even if ordered to do so by the court. They said she is alive by all medical criteria.

The state has argued that it could be considered homicide to disconnect the respirator.

Dr. Julius Korein, a neurologist testifying for the Quinlans, said, "I and many of my colleagues do not believe in saving a life that will lie as a vegetable for 10 years."

And Korein said he believed the purpose of the Quinlan's case was to bring into the open and make legal what he termed "an unwritten practice among doctors," to withhold treatment from patients who have no hope of survival as normal human beings.

Korein said doctors treating terminally ill patients sometimes tell nurses such things as: "If this man stops breathing don't resuscitate him."

The Quinlan's action has been endorsed by priests at their local Roman Catholic church. On Tuesday, the chancellor of the Paterson Diocese endorsed the Quinlans' position.

Quinlan said he probably wouldn't have made the move had the church not told him it was morally correct.

Turkish Ambassador Shot To Death

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Three men armed with submachine guns stormed into the Turkish Embassy at noon today and killed the ambassador, police and Foreign Ministry officials said. The three escaped in a white Mercedes-Benz.

Turkish diplomats told Austrian police they believed the killers of Danis Tunaligil, 60, were "English-speaking Greeks." But police said they had no independent information to confirm this.

Greece and Turkey have a long rivalry over Cyprus, which was worsened when Turkish forces invaded the Mediterranean island in July 1974. Turkish troops still occupy part of the island, which has a Turkish minority and Greek majority population.

The dead man was one of Turkey's leading diplomats. He had been ambassador to Vienna since November 1973.

Police and ambulances converged on the embassy, but an ambulance physician said Tunaligil was already dead.

"We don't know anything about the motive of the assailants," a member of the embassy staff told The Associated Press.

He said the embassy had no idea whether the assault was a political crime, or directed against the ambassador personally. It was not immediately known how the assailant reached the ambassador's office.

"We still have differing reports on what actually occurred before the ambassador was shot and killed," said a police spokesman. "We know that the three men, armed with submachine guns, entered the embassy around 12 o'clock (7 a.m. EDT)."

He said the ambassador was killed by "several bullets" fired from the submachine guns.

The official described one of the attackers as about 5 feet 3 and about 25 years old. He said there was confusion about the license plate on the escape car.

Tunaligil was married and the father of a 15-year-old daughter.

After university studies in Istanbul, Tunaligil entered the diplomatic service in 1939. He served in Milan, Italy, and Berne, Switzerland, before becoming ambassador to Rome in 1948.

In 1952, Tunaligil became section chief in the Turkish Foreign Ministry and two years later was appointed charge d'affaires in Moscow. In 1960 he took over as ambassador to Jordan and in 1964 went to Belgrade.

Between 1968 and 1970 he was political director in the Turkish Foreign Ministry. Tunaligil came to Vienna after serving as ambassador to The Hague.

A Page Of Opinion

Invisible Leadership

When a nation of the size, population and secrecy of China begins hiding its upper echelon of leadership from public view, rumors are bound to fly. It has happened before in China, particularly during the bloody "cultural revolution" of the 1960s, and it is occurring again.

Both Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai are believed suffering from serious illnesses, although the exact nature of their ailments is not known. But with increasing frequency both have been skipping diplomatic and cultural events at which at least one of the country's top leaders might have been expected to attend.

What is now intriguing China watchers in the rest of the world is that both the top men and third-ranking Communist Party leader Wang Hung-wen all failed to appear at the annual reception commemorating the founding of Communist China. To have all three top leaders missing from that is probably the most important national observance is a positive sign that all is not well in Peking's upper echelons.

It also lends credence to the theory that followers of both Mao and Chou already are skirmishing for position of power when retirement or death bring the old era to an end.

A Good Award

By JIM BISHOP

ON THE ROAD, OLEAN, N.Y. — This is the serene pastoral home of St. Bonaventure University. The brown robes and cowls of the Franciscans dot the spacious white walks. In town, it seems as though most businessmen know each other. At least they nod.

This story began 15 years ago when Gladys Glad Hellinger and Dr. Russell Jandoli, chairman of the School of Journalism, decided to set up an award in the name of Broadway columnist and Hollywood producer, Mark Hellinger.

The work was done by Jandoli. He drew a Hellinger Committee together. The object would be to meet once a year at luncheon and present a graduate of St. Bonaventure with $500 in cash and a job.

Jandoli is an intense perfectionist. He invited some distinguished men to join: Milton Caniff, artist; Don Carter, editor; John Charles Daly, intellectual-at-large; E. Boyd Fitzpatrick, William Randolph Hearst Jr., Randolph Hearst, John S. Knight — publishers all; Red Smith, Louis Sobol, Jim Bishop — working stiffs.

We began to meet in 1960. I worried about the Hellinger Award because we would require about $25,000 in the bank to become self-sustaining.

At each luncheon we were eating and drinking most of our donations, which came to $100 a year per member. This year a small miracle occurred. The Committee has $26,000. It may roll over for the first time.

Grey Fitzpatrick, editor of the Olean Times-Herald, sent a reporter out to track down some winners. He wanted to find out what they had done with their lives after getting the $500 and a job.

Salvatore De Vivo ('62) is editor of the Camden Courier-Post in New Jersey. The first winner, John Checkett ('60), worked on the New York Journal-American, but the committee has lost track of him.

Charles McRoy ('63) is dean at Medaille College, Buffalo, N.Y. Anthony R. Cardinale ('64) is an investigative reporter for the Buffalo Evening News. Joan M. Roeben ('65) is editor of The Boys Clubs of America.

The Hellinger Committee began to feel flattered. Our selections had done well — very well — in the early stages of their editorial lives. Hellinger, a slick jaded man with a predilection for terse sentences and short words, would have said, "Well done, Pappy."

Jane McGuire ('66) is a reporter for the Bergen Evening Record, Hackensack, N.J. Rita Fahey ('67) worked in the field of public relations for Exxon, but decided to quit to raise a family.

The young lady graduates, we found, were inclined to be better scholars than the young men. For a time, they seemed to be running away with the Hellinger Award.

Then Michael Zavadil ('68) came along. He is business editor of the Gannett Newspapers. Pamela Cheles ('69) took the money and went to Ohio State University to work for her doctorate.

Christine Krysiak ('70) moved up to become women's page editor of the Tonawanda (N.Y.) News. Then she became Mrs. Mike Dodd. Today she works part time for the Buffalo Evening News.

Margaret Stomierowski ('71) is at the copy desk — a formidable position for a youngster — on the Binghamton Press. The last of the ladies — so far — was Rosemary Kelly ('72). She is now copy editor at the Rochester Times-Union. Matthew Dudek ('73) is swing man at the Utica (N.Y.) Dispatch.

Last year's winner, Donald Then, handles public information for Canisius College. This year's Hellinger man is William A. Reed, a dark, handsome, mustachioed fellow whose cumulative report card comes to 3.67

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Is the New York Stock Exchange fighting solely for its own survival or, as its defenders maintain, is it fighting also in the public interest?

There is little question the exchange is fighting for its life. Its chairman, James J. Needham, says so. "This is all or nothing," he said in an interview. He equates survival with the national good.

The battleground is Washington, at hearings this week before the Securities and Exchange Commission, which must decide if it is best to retain, abolish or amend New York Stock Exchange Rule 394.

Could one rule be that important? "It's the cornerstone of the system," Needham has been quoted as saying.

The rule, with some exceptions, requires member firms to funnel most transactions in listed stocks to the floor of the exchange, where orders are matched and prices set.

"Most economists agree the most efficient pricing mechanism is one where buy-sell orders converge at one place," said Needham. The bigger the market the more efficient the pricing, and the "Big Board" is the biggest of all.

"Americans can raise capital better than any other people," he continued. It's the envy of other nations, said the man who has just become the first non-European to head the International Federation of Stock Exchanges.

But Rule 394 is related to another stock exchange institution, the specialist, a man who so to speak stands at the intersection of orders and directs traffic for the stocks in which he specializes.

"Most people don't quarrel about transactions coming to one place," out of a possible 4.00.

Father Damien McElrath, president of St. Bonaventure, gave Reed the check for $500 and noted that the committee would like to know his preference for a job. He beat us to the draw. Since graduation day he has been working as a reporter for the Bucks County (Pa.) Courier-Times.

It has all been worth while. The winners turned out to be better than average. At the end of the luncheon this year, Douglas Edwards stood to propose a Jim Bishop Award at St. Bonaventure.

John Daly seconded the motion and Dr. Jandoli stifled debate. I am conscious that this is an honor. I am also profoundly aware that, if you gave me a week to think, I might come up with something I wrote which rates such outrageous attention . . .

said Needham. "They quarrel about them coming to one person." There are 66 specialist units on the NYSE and each unit is assigned an average of 28 stocks.

When traffic gets disrupted — when there is an imbalance of buy and sell orders — they must act. That is, when a gap exists between the best price bid and the best price asked, they are committed to buying or selling from their own inventory.

Critics call this a monopoly; the exchange prefers to call it a franchise. The specialists must live up to a strict discipline, agree to an examination of conduct, and maintain an orderly market, the exchange says.

They have an affirmative responsibility, for example, to risk their capital so as to reduce price fluctuations between trades. Sometimes they work against their short-term interest. Long term, they generally come out with a good profit.

Critics would like to see the specialist ousted or his powers reduced. Too often, they say, he fails to keep prices ascending or descending in an orderly fashion. Too infrequently, they continue, does the exchange discipline them.

See Abuses In Payments To Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in many parts of the country have been collecting federal "emergency" benefits for years, sometimes receiving duplicate subsidies for crop and livestock losses, the Agriculture Department said today.

"Federal emergency assistance programs for farmers, amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars each year, are providing duplicative benefits to many farmers and are paying enormous subsidies to maintain farming in areas . . . that are generally unsuitable for farming," the department said.

The report included figures showing that some farmers in 528 counties — more than one-sixth of the nation's total — have collected federal disaster payments almost consistently in recent years. In 224 of those counties, farmers have been eligible in each year since 1970, officials said.

"In these counties, federal assistance payments have become a way of life and provide a specialized kind of welfare to supplement farm income," the report said.

"Although USDA has attempted to design regulations to prevent duplicative payments, the complexity of these regulations — and sometimes less than full disclosure by farmers — frequently results in windfall benefits," the report said.

The paper was made available at the request of newsmen who had asked about USDA's disaster and emergency programs to help farmers.

Claim Farmers Have Lost Sales

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Farmers in the U.S. will never completely recover foreign grain markets lost as a result of the Ford Administration's recent grain embargo, says Wallace Hirschfeld, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

President Ford lifted the twomonth-old embargo on sales to the Soviet Union on Monday.

Hirschfeld says the action will have frightened many foreign buyers into seeking alternate grain supplies in South America and Australia.

"What's really ironic is that the embargo was never really necessary in the first place. There's always been enough grain to go around," he said.

Low-Fat Cattle

NEW YORK (AP) — A polyunsaturated or low-fat diet for cattle may solve the high cholesterol problem in meat and dairy products for humans, reports Medical World News magazine.

Investigators at the University of California's Davis campus are encouraged by results of an experiment which showed that people consuming meat and dairy products from low-fat cattle and sheep sharply reduced their blood cholesterol levels.

LAFF - A - DAY

"I wonder if junior and daughter are throwing parties at home while we're away?"

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

When I take a water pill I can lose seven pounds in a day. Is there any danger in using these pills for a long time in order to take off weight?

Mrs. S. L., Pa.

Dear Mrs. L.:

It is astonishing to me that this question continues to arise despite the warnings by your doctors.

I have repeatedly told my readers that your kind of thinking is fallacious.

It must appear to you that the temporary loss of water after using a diuretic, or water pill, is NOT the answer to overweight.

Certainly, draining fluid from the body tissues will temporarily reduce weight. But isn't it obvious that the real answer must be sought in the reason why your body tissues tend to accumulate so much water?

It is necessary that hormone imbalance, kidney disease and chemical problems within the blood stream be an essential part of a general examination. Only then can your problem be attacked at its source.

Diuretic drugs are very valuable when prescribed by physicians for specific conditions and for a definitely limited period of time.

My husband has just returned from India. While there he was sick with malaria. Even though he was cured I wonder if he can infect our two young children.

Mrs. R. B. B., Mich.

Malaria is transmitted through the bite of the anopheles mosquito. It is rare for malaria to be transmitted in any other way.

I must assume that your husband was adequately treated with the effective antimalarial drugs. Neither you nor your children should live in fear that you will be infected.

Even though the malarial parasite has been destroyed, all people who have ever had malaria are urged to remember never to donate their blood for transfusion. Even in the absence of symptoms of malaria, the parasite that causes malaria may still be harbored in the blood stream.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . .
Speech defects in children should be recognized early and treated long before they become a source of embarrassment to the child.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:

Three members of the five member Circleville City Board of Education to take office January 1, 1976, will be elected November 4.

Boards of Education these days have a most challenging and difficult task. Few systems anywhere have been as successful as our Circleville City Schools. Where it has become almost commonplace to have teacher strikes and other conflict throughout the nation, with great loss to the proper education of students, we have had a continuing positive situation in Circleville. Board support has contributed to this success.

However, past accomplishments do not guarantee continued success. A successful future can only be assured by elected qualified, experienced, and dedicated citizens, willing to continue support for fiscal responsibility, firmness, and fairness, and to resist pressures for permissiveness that do not serve the best interest of quality educational practices.

Each of us has the duty to inform ourselves of the issues and the qualifications of the candidates and then finally to be certain to vote for our choice on November 4. Only those voting participate in electing - often one vote decides issues when so many are running.

Your choice of three of the six candidates who have indicated a willingness to serve can help direct the destiny of the school system for the next four years. I urge you to cast an informed vote on November 4 if you want a good school system.

Dear Editor:

Are the people of Circleville and Pickaway County really aware of the happiness and fulfillment of being foster parents?

I'm sure some do, because they are caring for neglected and battered and abused children in their homes now. Taking these confused and somewhat unwanted children is not a heroic deed, but one of some compassion. Some people make the comment that couples take foster children for extra pocket money. Well, believe us, it is not a money-making business. However, the Pickaway County Children Services provides for its wards to the best of its capacity.

People will consistently say that it would be too heartbreaking to keep a child, become attached and then have it taken away. It's true that it hurts deeply, but the consolation of helping the child to learn, feel some security and love being given freely com-pensates.

It isn't all a bed of roses, because each child is unique in that his or her problems, personalities and needs are different.

It all ends with a child leaving with having gained something worthwhile. We don't always agree with how the legal system deals with the parents and their children, but a child shouldn't suffer. We wish to make it clear that the Children Services did, by no means, prompt us to write this letter. We just wanted the public to know what they might be missing and what they and some child could be gaining. We're indeed grateful to the Children Services for bringing us happiness and the chance to give something a little worthwhile in return.

The caseworkers deserve more credit than they'll ever receive.

Computerized Car Probes For Bumps

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — James McQuirt of the Ohio Department of Transportation is an expert on bumpy roads in Ohio.

He travels Ohio's highways in a specially equipped 1970-model sedan that measures road surfaces from one-eighths inch to an inch.

When he says a road is bumpy, he knows what he is talking about.

McQuirt is project engineer on a DOT program to determine road roughness.

The car is equipped with eight magnetic relays that provide digital readouts about the road on a dashboard console.

Michael Long, a planning and research engineer, said a recorder in the front seat charges variations and correlates them with an odometer while the driver holds a constant speed.

Other than the metering equipment connected to the rear axle, the car is just a standing passenger car, he said. It was obtained three years ago from the department's bureau of maintenance.

The car was selected because it is representative of the average passenger car, he said. It is used only about three or four months a year, in the later summer and early fall.

Charles H. Groves, administrator of technical services, said the car helps determine a pattern of road reconstructions and resurfacings so that can be performed uniformly.

On better highways, it tests surfaces instead of searching for potholes and other problems that can be seen by the naked eye.

A Page Of Opinion

Invisible Leadership

When a nation of the size, population and secrecy of China begins hiding its upper echelon of leadership from public view, rumors are bound to fly. It has happened before in China, particularly during the bloody "cultural revolution" of the 1960s, and it is occurring again.

Both Chairman Mao Tse-tung and Premier Chou En-lai are believed suffering from serious illnesses, although the exact nature of their ailments is not known. But with increasing frequency both have been skipping diplomatic and cultural events at which at least one of the country's top leaders might have been expected to attend.

What is now intriguing China watchers in the rest of the world is that both the top men and third-ranking Communist Party leader Wang Hung-wen all failed to appear at the annual reception commemorating the founding of Communist China. To have all three top leaders missing from that is probably the most important national observance is a positive sign that all is not well in Peking's upper echelons.

It also lends credence to the theory that followers of both Mao and Chou already are skirmishing for position of power when retirement or death bring the old era to an end.

A Good Award

By JIM BISHOP

ON THE ROAD, OLEAN, N.Y. — This is the serene pastoral home of St. Bonaventure University. The brown robes and cowls of the Franciscans dot the spacious white walks. In town, it seems as though most businessmen know each other. At least they nod.

This story began 15 years ago when Gladys Glad Hellinger and Dr. Russell Jandoli, chairman of the School of Journalism, decided to set up an award in the name of Broadway columnist and Hollywood producer, Mark Hellinger.

The work was done by Jandoli. He drew a Hellinger Committee together. The object would be to meet once a year at luncheon and present a graduate of St. Bonaventure with $500 in cash and a job.

Jandoli is an intense perfectionist. He invited some distinguished men to join: Milton Caniff, artist; Don Carter, editor; John Charles Daly, intellectual-at-large; E. Boyd Fitzpatrick, William Randolph Hearst Jr., Randolph Hearst, John S. Knight — publishers all; Red Smith, Louis Sobol, Jim Bishop — working stiff.

We began to meet in 1960. I worried about the Hellinger Award because we would require about $25,000 in the bank to become self-sustaining.

At each luncheon we were eating and drinking most of our donations, which came to $100 a year per member. This year a small miracle occurred. The Committee has $26,000. It may roll over for the first time.

Grey Fitzpatrick, editor of the Olean Times-Herald, sent a reporter out to track down some winners. He wanted to find out what they had done with their lives after getting the $500 and a job.

Salvatore De Vivo ('62) is editor of the Camden Courier-Post in New Jersey. The first winner, John Checkett ('60), worked on the New York Journal-American, but the committee has lost track of him.

Charles McRoy ('63) is dean at Medaille College, Buffalo, N.Y. Anthony R. Cardinale ('64) is an investigative reporter for the Buffalo Evening News. Joan M. Roeben ('65) is editor of The Boys Clubs of America.

The Hellinger Committee began to feel flattered. Our selections had done well — very well — in the early stages of their editorial lives. Hellinger, a slick jaded man with a predilection for terse sentences and short words, would have said, "Well done, Pappy."

Jane McGuire ('66) is a reporter for the Bergen Evening Record, Hackensack, N.J. Rita Fahey ('67) worked in the field of public relations for Exxon, but decided to quit to raise a family.

The young lady graduates, we found, were inclined to be better scholars than the young men. For a time, they seemed to be running away with the Hellinger Award.

Then Michael Zavadi ('68) came along. He is business editor of the Gannett Newspapers. Pamela Cheles

('69) took the money and went to Ohio State University to work for her doctorate.

Christine Krysiak ('70) moved up to become women's page editor of the Tonawanda (N.Y.) News. Then she became Mrs. Mike Dodd. Today she works part time for the Buffalo Evening News.

Margaret Stomierowski ('71) is at the copy desk — a formidable position for a youngster — on the Binghamton Press. The last of the ladies — so far — was Rosemary Kelly ('72). She is now copy editor at the Rochester Times-Union. Matthew Dudeck ('73) is swing man at the Utica (N.Y.) Dispatch.

Last year's winner, Donald Then, handles public information for Canisius College. This year's Hellinger man is William A. Reed, a dark, handsome, mustachioed fellow whose cumulative report card comes to 3.67

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Is the New York Stock Exchange fighting solely for its own survival or, as its defenders maintain, is it fighting also in the public interest?

There is little question the exchange is fighting for its life. Its chairman, James J. Needham, says so. "This is all or nothing," he said in an interview. He equates survival with the national good.

The battleground is Washington, at hearings this week before the Securities and Exchange Commission, which must decide if it is best to retain, abolish or amend New York Stock Exchange Rule 394.

Could one rule be that important? "It's the cornerstone of the system," Needham has been quoted as saying.

The rule, with some exceptions, requires member firms to funnel most transactions in listed stocks to the floor of the exchange, where orders are matched and prices set.

"Most economists agree the most efficient pricing mechanism is one where buy-sell orders converge at one place," said Needham. The bigger the market the more efficient the pricing, and the "Big Board" is the biggest of all.

"Americans can raise capital better than any other people," he continued. It's the envy of other nations, said the man who has just become the first non-European to head the International Federation of Stock Exchanges.

But Rule 394 is related to another stock exchange institution, the specialist, a man who so to speak stands at the intersection of orders and directs traffic for the stocks in which he specializes.

"Most people don't quarrel about transactions coming to one place," out of a possible 4.00.

Father Damien McElrath, president of St. Bonaventure, gave Reed the check for $500 and noted that the committee would like to know his preference for a job. He beat us to the draw. Since graduation day he has been working as a reporter for the Bucks County (Pa.) Courier-Times.

It has all been worth while. The winners turned out to be better than average. At the end of the luncheon this year, Douglas Edwards stood to propose a Jim Bishop Award at St. Bonaventure.

John Daly seconded the motion and Dr. Jandoli stifled debate. I am conscious that this is an honor. I am also profoundly aware that, if you gave me a week to think, I might come up with something I wrote which rates such outrageous attention . . .

said Needham. "They quarrel about them coming to one person." There are 66 specialist units on the NYSE and each unit is assigned an average of 28 stocks.

When traffic gets disrupted — when there is an imbalance of buy and sell orders — they must act. That is, when a gap exists between the best price bid and the best price asked, they are committed to buying or selling from their own inventory.

Critics call this a monopoly; the exchange prefers to call it a franchise. The specialists must live up to a strict discipline, agree to an examination of conduct, and maintain an orderly market, the exchange says.

They have an affirmative responsibility, for example, to risk their capital so as to reduce price fluctuations between trades. Sometimes they work against their short-term interest. Long term, they generally come out with a good profit.

Critics would like to see the specialist ousted or his powers reduced. Too often, they say, he fails to keep prices ascending or descending in an orderly fashion. Too infrequently, they continue, does the exchange discipline them.

See Abuses In Payments To Farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in many parts of the country have been collecting federal "emergency" benefits for years, sometimes receiving duplicate subsidies for crop and livestock losses, the Agriculture Department said today.

"Federal emergency assistance programs for farmers, amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars each year, are providing duplicative benefits to many farmers and are paying enormous subsidies to maintain farming in areas . . . that are generally unsuitable for farming," the department said.

The report included figures showing that some farmers in 528 counties — more than one-sixth of the nation's total — have collected federal disaster payments almost consistently in recent years. In 224 of those counties, farmers have been eligible in each year since 1970, officials said.

"In these counties, federal assistance payments have become a way of life and provide a specialized kind of welfare to supplement farm income," the report said.

"Although USDA has attempted to design regulations to prevent duplicative payments, the complexity of these regulations — and sometimes less than full disclosure by farmers — frequently results in windfall benefits," the report said.

The paper was made available at the request of newsmen who had asked about USDA's disaster and emergency programs to help farmers.

Claim Farmers Have Lost Sales

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Farmers in the U.S. will never completely recover foreign grain markets lost as a result of the Ford Administration's recent grain embargo, says Wallace Hirschfeld, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

President Ford lifted the twomonth-old embargo on sales to the Soviet Union on Monday.

Hirschfeld says the action will have frightened many foreign buyers into seeking alternate grain supplies in South America and Australia.

"What's really ironic is that the embargo was never really necessary in the first place. There's always been enough grain to go around," he said.

Low-Fat Cattle

NEW YORK (AP) — A polyunsaturated or low-fat diet for cattle may solve the high cholesterol problem in meat and dairy products for humans, reports Medical World News magazine.

Investigators at the University of California's Davis campus are encouraged by results of an experiment which showed that people consuming meat and dairy products from low-fat cattle and sheep sharply reduced their blood cholesterol levels.

Armco Notes Drastic Drop In Earnings

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Armco Steel Corp. Board Chairman William Verity criticized "short-sighted government meddling" on price policies and "inaction on an energy policy" while there is a continued depression in the steel market.

Armco Tuesday reported a drastic drop in third quarter profits over last year, earnings of $29.240 million or 93 cents a share, compared to $66.541 million in 1974, $2.21 per share of common stock.

Verity said surging cost pressure combined with weak demand is continuing the steel depression.

"It now appears that domestic steel shipments this year will be at a 12-year low," Verity said.

"The impact of such a nonprofit situation in our steel business depresses our outlook for additional job-creating investment in steel.

"Without improvement in our price-cost relationship, we cannot consider any additional investments in steel producing facilities."

However, Armco will continue its 1.1 million ton of expansion production capacity it launched last year, he said.

"We have faith in the longrange strength of our steel business, but short-sighted governmental meddling with price policies and inaction on an energy policy have so muddled the short range outlook that prudent management dictates a moratorium on any new expansion in steelmaking capacity," Verity said.

Plant Blast Said Planned

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A man who pleaded guilty to charges brought in the destruction of a Shelton plant testified Tuesday that one defendant told him the owners "wanted the plant to come down."

John Shaw, 28, of Pittsburgh, testified in U.S. District Court that the statement was made by the Rev. David N. Bubar of Memphis, Tenn. on March 1, the day the Sponge Rubber Products Co.'s main plant was destroyed by explosions and fire.

Shaw testified before the jury Tuesday after Judge Jon O. Newman ruled against a defense motion to block his testimony. Shaw has pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy and interstate travel to aid racketeering in connection with the destruction. He is to be tried separately.

Shaw testified that all nine defendants in the current trial were involved in an alleged conspiracy to destroy the plant.

Among the defendants is Charles Moeller, of Cridersville, Ohio, president of Sponge Rubber Products.

Fort Gower was built in 1774 near the site of Hockingport, Athens County, Ohio. It was here that Virginia officers in Lord Dunmore's Army signed resolutions to support the Colonies in case of war with George III.

NEW LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Leamon M. Lee has taken to the saddle in his campaign for re-election to a second term on the Jefferson Township Board of Education.

And his whole family is riding the campaign trail with him.

It's not a campaign gimmick, says the 41-year-old Lee, but "another way to fight inflation" and a small effort to help cut down on air pollution.

Lee plans to cover the 32 square miles in the mixed suburban and rural township just west of Dayton before the Nov. 4 election, seeing voters and dropping off campaign literature.

"My automobile gets 15 miles per gallon," Lee explained. "With frequent stops, that's decreased to 11 miles per gallon. Even at the independent dealers' price of $9.9 cents a gallon, that gets pretty expensive.

"I only pay 60 cents a day to feed my horse, and he's going to eat that much whether he's being ridden or just standing," Lee said.

Lee's wife, Brenda, said the horseback campaign was her idea. She felt it would be not only more economical but also a way of preserving nature by cutting down on fuel exhaust emissions.

"Horseback riding has been our family hobby anyway," Mrs. Lee said. The Lees own seven horses, three of them registered quarterhorses they enter in shows.

Lee's sons Tyrone, 13, and Tony, 5,

ride along with him to help distribute campaign literature.

Lee said it is not unusual to see horsemen on township roads and he hasn't had any problems with motorized traffic.

Lee is one of four candidates, and the only incumbent, running for two open school board seats. Also running, but not on horseback, are Charles G. Brantley Jr., Dr. Melvin W. Corbis and Mrs. LaNese E. Moore.

Armco Notes Drastic Drop In Earnings

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP)—Armco Steel Corp. Board Chairman William Verity criticized "short-sighted government meddling" on price policies and "inaction on an energy policy" while there is a continued depression in the steel market.

Armco Tuesday reported a drastic drop in third quarter profits over last year, earnings of $29.240 million or 93 cents a share, compared to $66.541 million in 1974, $2.21 per share of common stock.

Verity said surging cost pressure combined with weak demand is continuing the steel depression.

"It now appears that domestic steel shipments this year will be at a 12-year low," Verity said.

"The impact of such a nonprofit situation in our steel business depresses our outlook for additional job-creating investment in steel.

"Without improvement in our price-cost relationship, we cannot consider any additional investments in steel producing facilities."

However, Armco will continue its 1.1 million ton of expansion production capacity it launched last year, he said.

"We have faith in the longrange strength of our steel business, but short-sighted governmental meddling with price policies and inaction on an energy policy have so muddled the short range outlook that prudent management dictates a moratorium on any new expansion in steelmaking capacity," Verity said.

Plant Blast Said Planned

NEW HAVEN (AP) — A man who pleaded guilty to charges brought in the destruction of a Shelton plant testified Tuesday that one defendant told him the owners "wanted the plant to come down."

John Shaw, 28, of Pittsburgh, testified in U.S. District Court that the statement was made by the Rev. David N. Bubar of Memphis, Tenn. on March 1, the day the Sponge Rubber Products Co.'s main plant was destroyed by explosions and fire.

Shaw testified before the jury Tuesday after Judge Jon O. Newman ruled against a defense motion to block his testimony. Shaw has pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy and interstate travel to aid racketeering in connection with the destruction. He is to be tried separately.

Shaw testified that all nine defendants in the current trial were involved in an alleged conspiracy to destroy the plant.

Among the defendants is Charles Moeller, of Cridersville, Ohio, president of Sponge Rubber Products.

Fort Gower was built in 1774 near the site of Hockingport, Athens County, Ohio. It was here that Virginia officers in Lord Dunmore's Army signed resolutions to support the Colonies in case of war with George III.

NEW LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Leamon M. Lee has taken to the saddle in his campaign for re-election to a second term on the Jefferson Township Board of Education.

And his whole family is riding the campaign trail with him.

It's not a campaign gimmick, says the 41-year-old Lee, but "another way to fight inflation" and a small effort to help cut down on air pollution.

Lee plans to cover the 32 square miles in the mixed suburban and rural township just west of Dayton before the Nov. 4 election, seeing voters and dropping off campaign literature.

"My automobile gets 15 miles per gallon," Lee explained. "With frequent stops, that's decreased to 11 miles per gallon. Even at the independent dealers' price of 59.9 cents a gallon, that gets pretty expensive.

"I only pay 60 cents a day to feed my horse, and he's going to eat that much whether he's being ridden or just standing," Lee said.

Lee's wife, Brenda, said the horseback campaign was her idea. She felt it would be not only more economical but also a way of preserving nature by cutting down on fuel exhaust emissions.

"Horseback riding has been our family hobby anyway," Mrs. Lee said. The Lees own seven horses, three of them registered quarterhorses they enter in shows.

Lee's sons Tyrone, 13, and Tony, 5,

ride along with him to help distribute campaign literature.

Lee said it is not unusual to see horsemen on township roads and he hasn't had any problems with motorized traffic.

Lee is one of four candidates, and the only incumbent, running for two open school board seats. Also running, but not on horseback, are Charles G. Brantley Jr., Dr. Melvin W. Corbis and Mrs. LaNese E. Moore.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

'Gays' Unhappy About Gay Lib

DEAR ABBY: My family name is "Gay." My ancestors have been traced back to France in the early 1600s.

I am writing this in hopes that the Gay Liberation Society will see it and realize how unfair they are being in using our name for their organization.

The gay liberation group holds that they have a right to live and let live—a philosophy with which I am in complete agreement. But in doing so, they have infringed upon the rights of others.

Since the homosexuals have organized and officially adopted our name for their group, we have been harassed with crank telephone calls at all hours, and subjected to insults and ridicule.

Our name was "Gay" long before they took that name, so I think in fairness to us Gays, they should change the name of their society to one more befitting to their crusade.

The last straw came when my father called me long distance after he saw a TV series on homosexuality, and he seriously suggested that WE change OUR name!

A PROUD GAY

DEAR PROUD: I understand your plight and am most sympathetic, but I doubt if the Gay Liberation Society will consider changing its name. Although you were Gay first, I believe there are more of THEM than there are of YOU.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married. The wedding was beautiful and most costly. My parents paid for everything.

They hired the finest photographer in town, who took nearly 100 pictures in color. He took about 25 group pictures in which the mother of the groom appeared.

CJHS Plans Open House

Dozens of young people from the Circleville Junior High School are helping in the preparation and presentation of the annual open house to be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. Principal Walter Owens announced that all parents are cordially invited.

Special education students of Mrs. Dora Moss and Mrs. Patty Lutz are preparing name tags for parents and teachers, as well as directions materials to be used by guides.

Some 30 young people elected by their fellow students will register parents and teachers prior to the mass meeting in the auditorium.

Following a brief program and instruction for the evening, these young people will serve as guides in various parts of the building.

Parents will attend five abbreviated class sessions of their choice. In these sessions teachers will explain the aims of their courses. Demonstrations will be presented in gym classes. Schedules have been arranged by Mrs. Sharon Wilamowski.

Following class sessions, a social period will be held in the school cafeteria. Home economic students of Miss Cathy Wine will serve refreshments.

Library To Show Coalhole Rubbings

Mrs. Robert Hutzelman will give a demonstration of rubbings 1:30 p.m. Thursday at Pickaway County Public Library in conjunction with the exhibit of the 19th century cast iron coalhole covers from Louisville, Ky.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

A public hearing on the Ohio Branch Line Impact Analysis will be held in Hearing Room No. 2, State Office Building, 65 South Front St., Columbus, Ohio, Thursday, November 6, 1975 starting at 10:00 A.M.

Copies of the draft Analysis and recommendations may be examined at the Ohio Department of Transportation District Offices and the County Engineers' Office after October 22, 1975.

Notice of your intention to testify should be given to ODOT on or before October 31, 1975. Written testimony can be submitted up to November 15, 1975.

Later, we learned that she went to the photographer's studio and asked to see the pictures of the wedding. Then she BOUGHT the negatives of all the pictures in which she thought she looked "terrible," and she destroyed them!

Those pictures can never be replaced, Abby. What do you think of such a vain woman? And what can be done about it?

HURT BRIDE

DEAR HURT: If your parents hired the photographer, he had no business selling the negatives to anyone. The groom's mother was clearly out of line.

There is nothing you can do about it now. (P.S. One word of advice, dear. Don't taunt your husband about this. He's not responsible for his mother's deeds.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married for 30 years and raised a fine family. He was a wonderful man, and I loved him very much. After he had been gone for 10 years, I married another man.

This marriage was not a beautiful love affair, as was my first. It was a convenience for both of us. My second husband also had been married previously.

I want to be buried in my family plot when my time comes, and my present husband wants to be buried beside HIS first wife. We are agreed on that, but here's the problem: How can I be buried beside my husband with my present husband's last name — which I legally bear?

That would be dreadful. Could I have my marker read: "Elizabeth, child of God, 1915"? Or would that be in poor taste?

PLANNING AHEAD IN CANADA
DEAR PLANNING: I think you've hit on the perfect solution.

Grange News

STAR GRANGE

Star Grange met in regular session Oct. 14 in the basement of the Five Points United Methodist Church for their October meeting. A letter of appreciation was read from the state hospital for our contribution for the patients to attend the state fair.

It was announced that Pomona Grange will be held Nov. 1 at the 4-H and Grange building and all members are urged to attend.

Robert Morgan, Master Pro Tem presided over the business session.

Star Grange will serve food at the Bloodmobile in Circleville and all members are asked to furnish food and help with the project.

The National Grange will meet in Columbus in November and all Grangers who wish to receive the seventh degree are asked to get their tickets from the Master. It will be conferred on Nov. 1.

The program "Autumn Reflections" was presented by the worthy lecturer, Mrs. Helen Hammel. Roll call was answered by the members telling what they like or dislike about the Pumpkin Show. Mrs. Herman Porter read, "Autumn" followed by group singing, "America the Beautiful".

The lecturer then explained the Constitutional Amendments issues to be voted on at the election. A contest, "How many words can you make out of, 'Pumpkin Show?'" was won by Harold Furniss. Mrs. Robert Morgan read, "The Wishing Pumpkin" to close the program.

There will be no meeting of Star Grange in November as they are invited to Washington Grange for Installation on Nov. 11. The next regular meeting will be Dec. 9 and will feature the annual Christmas party.

The grange will furnish the turkey and members will bring a covered dish supper to be held at 6:30 p.m. There will be a gift exchange and a special program.

Lovely seasonal refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Beathard, Mr. and Mrs. William Davis, and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Michel.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Issue 3, the governor's transportation bond issue, goes before voters on Nov. 4 as part of the four-point economic recovery package amid charges that it is underfunded and impractical.

The governor and his supporters contend the issuance of $1.75 billion in transportation bonds will create 100,000 construction jobs each year over the life of the bonds while providing needed improvements to all facets of Ohio's transportation system.

Critics say the program is an anachronism, a throwback to the heyday of highway building at a time when national attention and support has turned to other modes of transportation.

They also say the program is grossly underfunded and will come up short by about $90 million each year.

That is disputed by supporters, who say the tax increase included in the issue was never intended to be the sole source of funding. Existing tax revenues can be diverted to the new bond issue once existing highways bonds are paid off, they argue.

Issue 3 calls for borrowing $1.75 billion over the next five years to finance transportation improvements. The bonds must be repaid by the year 2009, with revenues from a nine-tenths of a cent per gallon increase in gasoline taxes.

The bonds are "general obligation," meaning that the state would pledge all its revenue sources to pay off the debt if the tax is insufficient.

Of the money, $400 million would go in block grants to cities, counties and townships for street and road improvements, $1.025 billion would go to state highways, $85 million would go to urban mass transit, $55 million to intercity rail service and $100 million for city streets and street lighting where needed.

The remainder, in smaller amounts, would go to airports, bikeways, park roads and transportation research.

Supporters say the $1.75 billion could attract $3.25 billion in federal matching funds, making $5 billion available. Critics say that assumption ignores current trends in federal spending.

Proponents say the bond issue "will create vital employment opportunities while helping us build construction projects now, instead of letting inflation increase the cost of projects and eat away taxpayers dollars.

"Without a new finance plan for transportation in Ohio, residents will have their transportation dollars going solely into maintaining the present highway system and local transportation systems," the supporters say. "The dollars for completing the missing highway links and the dollars for purchasing new transit coaches will disappear.

"To keep Ohio's people and their products on the move, we must support total transportation for Ohio," they argue.

But opponents argue that the program puts too much stress on highways and the gas tax. They say the $3.25 billion in federal matching funds could disappear by a vote of Congress as national priorities shift to mass transit, which receives relatively little attention in Issue 3.

Further, opponents say the income to pay for the issue, the gasoline tax, is unreliable in light of the energy shortage.

The trend is toward smaller, most efficient cars driven fewer miles opponents say, noting that gasoline tax revenues have declined since 1973.

At the present consumption level, opponents say, the gasoline tax would raise only $47.3 million annually, while the bond issues are expected to cost about $123 million each year. They say the difference will have to come from either increased taxes or decreased services.

How much will the plan cost the average citizen? If you drive your car 10,000 miles a year and get 13 miles to the gallon, you now pay $53.85 each year in state gasoline tax. If the bond issue passes, you will pay $60.77 each year.

Supporters call the $6.92 increase "less than the cost of one tankful of gasoline," a small price for the benefits.

Opponents note that the $6.92 each year won't cover the cost of the bonds. And the overall cost of the program, they say, is far more than that simple figure indicates.

BIG BEAR VALUE HOMEMAKER'S HINT

How you look, how you feel and how you perform mentally and physically depends a great deal on the foods you eat. A nutritionally balanced diet is important in maintaining good health.

Your body needs nutrients such as protein, vitamin C and iron every day. One way to make sure that you are getting the nutrients you need is to select foods from the four basic food groups in the amounts recommended by nutritionists.

THE FOUR GROUPS ARE:

MEAT GROUP: This group provides important sources of protein, iron, B vitamins and other nutrients and includes all meats, fish and poultry. Dry beans, eggs, peanut butter and cheese can be substituted for one meat serving. You need two or more servings per day from this group.

MILK GROUP: This group is important for calcium and phosphorus. It also provides protein, riboflavin and other nutrients. Milk, yogurt, cottage cheese and ice cream are some of the foods in this group. The number of daily servings depends on the age of a person. Teenagers and children need more milk than the two or more cups recommended for adults.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES GROUP: This group is a good source of most vitamins and minerals and includes all fruits and vegetables. You need four or more servings daily. A vitamin C source such as citrus fruits, strawberries, tomatoes and melon should be served every day. A vitamin A source such as a deep yellow or orange or dark green vegetable should be eaten every other day.

BREADS AND CEREALS GROUP: The foods in this group should be whole grain enriched. They provide B vitamins, protein and other nutrients and include rice and pasta as well as breads and cereals. Four or more servings are needed every day.

Use the nutritional labels found on many food products to help you choose a well balanced diet for your family.

Pupils Learn Fast At Zoo School

CINCINNATI (AP)—The 21 high school students who make up the new natural resource management program at the Cincinnati Zoo have been without text books for seven weeks and it looks like they won't have any before next year.

"I think we get more in field experience than we would get from books," said Bobby Jo Jarvis, one of the five girls in the class.

While the weather holds, the students are working with keepers and managers at the nation's second oldest zoo in one of several alternative school programs offered this year in efforts to break down racial imbalances in the 70,000-pupil system.

"All of the kids take care of animals and plants and prepare food for the animals," said Mrs. Claire Ehrlinger, their teacher.

The program was announced last May by school officials who said the program would prepare students for jobs in animal care, landscaping and wildlife management.

Deputy Supt. Robert Curry estimated the cost would be $22,938 a year and that the Ohio Department of Education would pay 60 per cent of the cost through vocational education grants.

However, the program was set up after the budget was sent in, according to Vocational Education Coordinator John Owen.

"There was no money in the budget for the program but we elected to start it now rather than wait until 1976," when the state could fund the program, said Owen.

Meanwhile, school administrators have scrounged funds from administrative programs for pencils, paper, materials, a few books and Mrs. Erlinger's salary.

She has borrowed books from several schools and is grabbing any available material.

"We're also able to use the Junior Zoologist Club's library here at the zoo," said Mrs. Ehrlinger. "We've been able to live without books. As long as the weather is nice, I'd rather be outside in the zoo anyway."

"There are some very good texts we

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Russell Mark Williams, 22, of Belpre, Ohio, pleaded no contest in U. S. District Court Tuesday to charges of kidnapping and abducting a Parkersburg, W. Va., woman for immoral purposes.

Judge Robert M. Duncan order a presentence investigation of Williams, whose recognizance bond was continued.

FBI agents said Williams used a red light on his car to stop the woman last Feb. 25. They said he put her in the trunk of his car, drove to Porterfield in Washington County, and assaulted her.

City, County To Receive Funds

Circleville will receive $213.11 and Pickaway County $12,500 in the October distribution of $4,179,998.32 in Local Government Fund money.

Under the Fund formula, the counties received eleven-twelfths of the amount, while the municipalities divided the remaining amount.

Sohio Chief Raps Breakup Planning

CLEVELAND (AP)—The president of the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) has called on consumers who depend solely on oil for their energy needs to tell their representatives in Washington they want more energy not more regulation.

A.W. Whitehouse Jr. was objecting to legislation proposing to break up oil companies engaged in other forms of energy production and supply.

Domestic oil production has declined recently at a rate of about 5 per cent a year while Congress has sought to agree on a national energy policy, Whitehouse said.

He added that no major oil discoveries have been made in the U.S. since oil was found at Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope seven years ago.

Teachers Still Out

LOUISVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Louisville teachers remained on strike for the second day Tuesday and school officials said no negotiations had been scheduled.

Bus drivers, cafeteria workers and other school employees have been respecting the picket lines. About 400 of the system's 4,150 students have been attending classes in the system's six schools.

The school board, following a stormy meeting Monday night, stuck to its offer of $8,300 base pay. The teachers want $8,500 plus a longer contract.

The board offered a one-year contract with a provision for negotiations at its finish.

Supt. Ed Hamsher said the classrooms were kept open by substitutes and administrative personnel. There were six parents, nine substitutes and one regular teacher on duty Monday, he said. The Ohio Association of Public School Employees, which represents nonteaching personnel, has been honoring the picket lines, school officials said.

An accident on construction-clogged Nicholas Dr. 8:15 a.m. Wednesday resulted in an injury to the driver of a car.

Circleville Police Ptl. Ron Smith said Linda L. Conrad, 33, 132 Plum St., complained of a back injury following the accident in which her car was apparently hit by a backhoe preparing to complete excavation work.

Mrs. Conrad was apparently stopped in traffic just north of the Moats Dr. intersection when her car was struck by the wheel of a backhoe operated by Thomas Piggem 39, Route 6, Chillicothe.

The backhoe is owned by the D. E. Goodchild Construction Co., contractors for the work.

Two passengers in the Conrad vehicle, Penny Conrad, 16, and Peggy Allen, 13, were not hurt.

CLEVELAND (AP)—The president of the Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) has called on consumers who depend solely on oil for their energy needs to tell their representatives in Washington they want more energy not more regulation.

A.W. Whitehouse Jr. was objecting to legislation proposing to break up oil companies engaged in other forms of energy production and supply.

Domestic oil production has declined recently at a rate of about 5 per cent a year while Congress has sought to agree on a national energy policy, Whitehouse said.

He added that no major oil discoveries have been made in the U.S. since oil was found at Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope seven years ago.

Teachers Still Out

LOUISVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Louisville teachers remained on strike for the second day Tuesday and school officials said no negotiations had been scheduled.

Bus drivers, cafeteria workers and other school employees have been respecting the picket lines. About 400 of the system's 4,150 students have been attending classes in the system's six schools.

The school board, following a stormy meeting Monday night, stuck to its offer of $8,300 base pay. The teachers want $8,500 plus a longer contract.

The board offered a one-year contract with a provision for negotiations at its finish.

Supt. Ed Hamsher said the classrooms were kept open by substitutes and administrative personnel. There were six parents, nine substitutes and one regular teacher on duty Monday, he said. The Ohio Association of Public School Employees, which represents nonteaching personnel, has been honoring the picket lines, school officials said.

Mrs. Conrad was apparently stopped in traffic just north of the Moats Dr. intersection when her car was struck by the wheel of a backhoe operated by Thomas Piggem 39, Route 6, Chillicothe.

The backhoe is owned by the D. E. Goodchild Construction Co., contractors for the work.

Two passengers in the Conrad vehicle, Penny Conrad, 16, and Peggy Allen, 13, were not hurt.

MRS. MARTIN SHARRETT

Mrs. Sharrett's topic was "The Problems and Pleasures of Operating a Small City Restaurant." She explained how she and Marty got involved in the restaurant business and how they came to Circleville. She also told of the many problems involved in operating a business of this type and of the pleasures that come from serving so many wonderful people.

Guests included Charles Nelson, Royce Grissom, Don Price and Key Club member Jerry Strawser. Volunteering to attend this week's Key Club meeting at Circleville High School were Wes Barton, Burl Wiggins and Bill Rosengarten. Volunteering to attend the meeting this week of the Moundbuilders were Rick Norris, Dave Gillespie, Ed Farynowski, Tom Bennett, Marty Sharrett and Ray Cundiff.

Walter Hall, chairman of the annual Charity Newsie urged all members

President Ray Cundiff announced that the Kiwanis Float had won the grand prize at Pumpkin Show and has received a special invitation to take part in the annual Halloween Parade Saturday in Chillicothe. All men riding the float are requested to be at the Chillicothe park no later than 5:45 p.m. Saturday.

Fred Bower, chairman of the annual president's party, announced the party would be held 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Presbyterian Church.

Program chairman Jim Shea announced that a Flag Pageant will be held for the president's party. Bob Schneider, Bob Wilson, Dave Gillespie, Sam McIlvaine, Norm Vineyard, Dick Davis, Charles Reid, Marty Sharrett, Bill Bradshaw, Gene Dowler, Rick Norris, Shea and Terry Strawser, daughter of Kiwanian Don Strawser, will take part in the pageant.

Restaurant Manager Speaks At Circleville Kiwanis Club

KIWANIS IN CLASSROOM — Doyle Painter (left) chairman of Kiwanis Major Emphasis Committee watches a student utilize one of the "dividers" constructed for use in Circleville Schools. Also shown are Mrs. Paul Richmond and Mrs. Pat Southward, school psychologist. The divider is in use in Circleville City Schools Primary Intensive Instruction class for students of average intelligence who was achieving below their ability level in some academic areas. The Circleville Kiwanis has as its major emphasis program for 1975-76 "Learning Disabilities". The divider helps eliminate visual distraction which might interfere with the student's work.

Guests included Charles Nelson, Royce Grissom, Don Price and Key Club member Jerry Strawser. All men riding the float are requested to be at the Chillicothe park no later than 5:45 p.m. Saturday.

Fred Bower, chairman of the annual president's party, announced the party would be held 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Presbyterian Church.

Program chairman Jim Shea announced that a Flag Pageant will be held for the president's party. Steam Engine Revival Sought BATAVIA, Ohio (AP) — "It seems like everybody has a warm spot in his heart for the old steam engine," a planning official told a meeting of public and conservation officials planning a revival of passenger rail service between Clermont County and Cincinnati.

Harry Reed, executive director of the Clermont County Planning Commission, said he supported the plan discussed Tuesday by the Ohio-Kentucky-Indiana Regional Council of Governments (OKI), Clermont and Warren county commissioners, Little Miami Inc. and other agencies.

"There hasn't been one negative response," said Clermont County Commissioner Tim Hogan.

"Just everybody we've talked to is ready to reach for the whistle but they weren't taking us seriously when we first started."

Clermont County officials reported there are two sets of track available in the western part of the county that connect to Fairfax on the eastern edge of Cincinnati.

The line could be used for transportation to Kings Island Amusement Park and the new East Fork Reservoir state park. Clermont County officials could ride the train to Cincinnati as commuters and to ball games at Riverfront Stadium and Cincinnati Coliseum, officials said.

Women Vets Eligible For GI Bill Funds

According to James P. Shea, Pickaway County Veterans Service Officer, there are a great many married women veterans who may be eligible for retroactive GI Bill education allowances from the Veterans Administration.

The Service Officer says that the VA wants to contact those women veterans who attended school under the GI Bill between June 1, 1966, and Oct. 4, 1972. It was during this six-year period, Shea said, that the VA did not pay any GI Bill dependency allowances to women while paying them to male veterans.

"Women are now eligible for the additional amount . . . approximately $30 per month . . . for each month they were in training under the GI bill while they had a spouse," Shea said.

Women veterans must file for the retroactive money before July 1, 1976, the Service Officer said, and if there should be any in this county, they should contact the Service Office, located in the basement of the Court House.

Volunteers For Youth Meet At YMCA

Seven members of the Board of Directors were present for the Tuesday meeting of Pickaway County Volunteers for Youth 4:30 p.m. at the YMCA.

Dieter Droste presented certificates from the Kiwanis Club to those members who participated in the Kiwanis Peanut Drive which netted VFY $500.

Volunteer Coordinator Edith Downing reported that two applications have been received from prospective volunteers, and added that three current volunteers are awaiting re-assignment.

Tom Fitzgerald, chairman of the training committee, reported that Jim and Romona Edman have agreed to teach the portion of the training session which deals with interpersonal relationships between probationers and volunteers.

A nominating committee composed of Tom Downing, Dieter Droste and Barbara Harrison was appointed to name a slate of candidates for the offices of President, Vice President and Secretary-Treasurer whose terms expire January 1. New officers will be elected at the annual meeting to be held Dec. 8 at R & N Steele's. All board members, volunteers, court officials and their spouses are urged to attend.

Derby News

MRS. GEORGIA SWEET, 896-2462

Herman Rowland feels that our Derby Community Men's Club is an organization we are very fortunate to have here. Herman, who due to a heart condition is confined to his bed almost constantly, has good reason to know.

He wants folks to know how much they have done for him. The Men's Club repaired a porch at his home which he was unable to do; the members make frequent sick calls to him, which helps to pass the long hours; they send him gifts of fruit or flowers; they helped with the loan of a hospital bed also.

He felt this was outstanding and more should be heard of their good work. He also said the Veterans organization has been most helpful in that they now furnish oxygen to him constantly where before it meant a trip to the hospital with precious time lost.

Residents should feel more secure knowing we have concerned citizens of this caliber in our community. A frequent visitor at his home is Reverend Larry Zellers.

Mrs. Bertha McCann and fiancé, Marion Zellner of Columbus, were honored guests at a small engagement party recently. The occasion was for the November marriage of the couple. It was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Wardell of near Derby.

The house guest of Mrs. Hazel Bruce the past two weeks was her sister Mrs. Mary Howard of Route 2, Bidwell. Mike Wardell has been ill with a virus infection the past week.

Derby News

MRS. GEORGIA SWEET, 896-2462

Herman Rowland feels that our Derby Community Men's Club is an organization we are very fortunate to have here. Herman, who due to a heart condition is confined to his bed almost constantly, has good reason to know.

He wants folks to know how much they have done for him. The Men's Club repaired a porch at his home which he was unable to do; the members make frequent sick calls to him, which helps to pass the long hours; they send him gifts of fruit or flowers; they helped with the loan of a hospital bed also.

He felt this was outstanding and more should be heard of their good work. He also said the Veterans organization has been most helpful in that they now furnish oxygen to him constantly where before it meant a trip to the hospital with precious time lost.

Residents should feel more secure knowing we have concerned citizens of this caliber in our community. A frequent visitor at his home is Reverend Larry Zellers.

Mrs. Bertha McCann and fiancé, Marion Zellner of Columbus, were honored guests at a small engagement party recently. The occasion was for the November marriage of the couple. It was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Wardell of near Derby.

The house guest of Mrs. Hazel Bruce the past two weeks was her sister Mrs. Mary Howard of Route 2, Bidwell. Mike Wardell has been ill with a virus infection the past week.

Bosox Beat Reds 7-6 In 12; Finale Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — After three days of rain, they finally played baseball at Fenway Park. And, boy, was it worth waiting for.

With all the drama of Broadway and the wallop of a Hollywood ending, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Cincinnati Reds 7-6 in 12 tension-packed innings Tuesday night and set the stage for tonight's seventh World Series game.

"They will be talking about that game for years to come," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose after the Red Sox tied this incredible World Series at three games apiece. "This game was the best advertisement for baseball you could have."

Rose, who never enjoys losing a game, nevertheless enjoyed playing in the "Green Monster" thriller.

"When he came up to bat in the 10th, Rose leaned over and said to me, 'Wow, this is some kind of game,'" said Boston catcher Carlton Fisk. "I agreed with him. You couldn't ask for a better game."

Fisk ended the wild affair as it should have been ended— with a leadoff home run in the 12th. The ball jumped off Fisk's bat and sailed into the left-field foul pole, bringing the roaring crowd at Fenway to its feet and the Red Sox players streaming onto the soggy field.

"It was a sinker down and in," said Fisk of the home run pitch from Cincinnati reliever Pat Darcy, the eighth Reds' pitcher of the game. "I knew the ball was either going to go foul or be a home run. Since the wind was blowing out, I was afraid the ball might hook around the pole. In fact, I bet the wind took the thing about 15 feet closer to the line than it should have been and it wound up hitting the pole just before going around it."

Fisk's blow was the most dramatic of the night because it was the final shot fired at Fenway. But there were many other moments of gorgeous high tension that kept everyone stuck to their seats and television sets.

Washed out of three straight starts by a long-winded storm, the Reds at last were poised for a knockout punch of the Red Sox in game No. 6. But it was Boston that got in the first punches, scoring three quick runs on Fred Lynn's homer into the right-center field seats in the first inning.

It seemed that it would be enough for Luis Tiant, the way Boston's ace was pitching for the first four innings. He gave up no runs and only two hits and appeared to be well on his way toward a third victory in the crazy, mixed-up series.

It wasn't to be, however. Tiant showed he was only human in the fifth when he gave up three runs, two on a triple by Ken Griffey. His imperfection became more obvious when George Foster unloaded a two-run double in the Cincinnati seventh and Cesar Geronimo laced a home run into the rightfield seats in the eighth.

Geronimo's wallop finished Tiant and gave the Reds a 6-3 lead. With Pedro Borbon pitching overpowering baseball in relief, the Big Red Machine seemed to be driving toward its first World Series title since 1940.

But as everyone soon found out, the game was far from over.

Borbon gave up a leadoff single to Lynn and a walk to Rico Petrocelli. The reliever was taken out of the game in favor of Rawly Eastwick and the Fenway crowd of 35,205 buzzed.

Cincinnati's outstanding youngster quieted the Boston customers by striking out Dwight Evans and getting Rick Burleson on a fly ball. Then he went to a 2-2 count on pinch hitter Bernie Carbo before the former Cincinnati player blasted a game-tying homer into the center field stands, more than 400 feet away.

"It was a fastball over the plate," Carbo said of the key pitch from Eastwick. "I was just trying to make contact in that spot and not strike out, so I stepped out of the box a couple of times to help relax myself. All I was trying to do was just put the ball in play someplace."

The house came down when Carbo hit it out. And the benchwarmer had a ball running around the bases, applauding himself as he enjoyed every second of his journey toward home. When he sauntered around third, he gave Rose a friendly needle.

"I said something like, 'Don't you wish you were as strong as me,' and he just laughed because we were real good friends when I was with the Reds. I wasn't trying to insult him or anything. I just was too excited. I was terribly thrilled."

With the ardent cheers of the Red Sox faithful still ringing in the air, the Boston bunch came back with more fireworks in the ninth. They loaded the bases with none out. The noise level reached new heights.

"We thought for sure we should have won it then," said Fisk.

But Boston didn't. Lynn lofted a fly ball to Foster along the left field line and the Cincinnati outfielder gunned down Denny Doyle at home for a double play. Then Petrocelli grounded out and the game went into extra innings.

The Reds had the opportunity to put the Red Sox away but were turned back by an almost unbelievable play by Evans in right in the 11th. With a man on first, Joe Morgan hit a shot that appeared almost certainly headed for home run territory, but the graceful young outfielder speared the ball near the seats and fired back into the infield to complete a double play.

"It was the best catch I've ever seen," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

That catch saved Boston for the 12th, when Fisk delivered his sudden thunder. The broadshouldered catcher leaped in the air when the ball hit the pole, and he joyfully streaked around the bases. When he finished his rounds, there was a mob of fans as well as teammates to welcome him home.

Grambling Retains Poll Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Grambling, unbeaten in six games this season, has strengthened its hold on the No. 1 spot in the weekly Associated Press college division football poll.

The Tigers, who beat Mississippi Valley 38-22 last Saturday and visit Jackson State in their next game, received 34 of 45 first place votes from a nationwide poll of sports writers and sportscasters released Tuesday.

While Grambling drew 431 points out of a possible 450, second-place Western Kentucky landed two first place ballots and 353 points. Texas A&I, which polled three No. 1 votes and 339 points, was ranked third.

Eastern Kentucky, with 233 points, narrowly grabbed the fourth place despite a first place vote, only three points ahead of North Dakota and Boise State, who tied for fifth. North Dakota drew three first place votes while Eastern Kentucky and Boise State got none.

Western Kentucky and Eastern Kentucky meet this weekend and the result could break up the logjam in the second through fifth spots.

Wittenberg was rated seventh followed by Henderson State, Northern Michigan and Montana.

Rounding out the top 15 were Idaho State, plunging from fourth following a 19-7 setback to Montana; Ithaca, Kentucky State, Delaware and Lehigh.

Ithaca received two first place votes and Delta State grabbed one No. 1 vote but failed to draw enough support to gain the rankings.

Lehigh, which downed Delaware 35-23 last Saturday, made its first appearance in the poll. Delaware was rated No. 8 last week.

Yaroch, Day Named MAC Grid Stars

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ball State quarterback Art Yaroch says playing for a conference championship makes a world of difference in the attitude of a football player.

"We have something to play for this year. It really adds incentive for the entire team in being able to play for the league title," said Yaroch, the Mid-American Conference's Offensive Player of the Week.

Yaroch was selected for the award Tuesday along with Ohio University middle guard Rod Day, the MAC's Defensive Player of the Week.

The junior quarterback from Columbus, Ohio, passed for 104 yards and two touchdowns, springing a 16-13 upset on Central Michigan.

Day, a junior from Wheelersburg, Ohio, participated in 17 tackles in Ohio's 17-9 setback at Miami (Ohio) Saturday.

Statistics back Yaroch's contention about conference incentive.

The Cardinals, with five victories in seven games, are only one triumph shy of their entire 1974 output (6-4-0).

"My first two years here, we didn't have that incentive. We'd play people I had never heard of," said Yaroch.

County Grid Teams All At Home Friday

All three Pickaway County high school football teams will be playing at home Friday and the most important of the games is the Westfall-Piketon clash.

The winner between these two undefeated squads is sure to emerge as the winner of the Scioto Valley Conference football title.

Piketon has ripped four SVC foes this season while the Mustangs handled four. Should Westfall survive Friday's clash the John Glanton-coached squad has Paint Valley and Southeastern remaining on its schedule.

Teays Valley will be after the second win of the season when Grandview invades Viking Stadium.

Logan Elm, owning two losses to Mid State League opponents, will host always tough Bloom Carroll. The Bulldogs' only loss in the league has been to unbeaten Canal Winchester.

Reds Put It All On Line Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — Unshakeable Joe Morgan sat amid a sea of gloomy faces, unwilling to concede that the Boston Red Sox are riding a wave of momentum going into tonight's World Series showdown.

"We're not down," said the intense Cincinnati second baseman. "We've got a Don Gullett going and they don't have another Luis Tiant."

As crushing as Tuesday night's 7-6 defeat in 12 innings was, the Reds refuse to quell their confident tones.

"They beat us," said scrappy Pete Rose. "Now Bill Lee has got to beat us. I'm not worried about him. I don't worry about any pitcher, I just take my hacks."

Boston catcher Carlton Fisk decided the superbly-played thriller with a leadoff homer in the 12th inning, victimizing young Pat Darcy for his first loss since June 29.

"I have no excuses," Darcy said through glazed eyes. "I tried to get the ball low—and it got up. I thought it was going to be foul. Then it hit the foul pole."

The game-clinching homer capped one of the most dramatic games in Series history.

"I couldn't believe it," said Rose, stirred by the pulsating duel that saw momentum reversed almost inning-by-inning. "Boston played like they have magnets in their gloves. That game had more ups and downs than any game I've ever been in. That was the only way that game could have been decided."

The rousing Red Sox victory sets the stage for tonight's collision between Gullett, Cincinnati's flame-throwing left-hander, and Lee, who was highly effective against the Reds in Game Two 10 days ago.

The Reds, bridesmaids in three World Series in the last 14 years but denied a world championship since 1940, put it all on the line tonight.

"There ain't no more talking after tomorrow," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. "Tomorrow is it." Morgan likes the Reds' chances. "I

Fishing Lures Big Business

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Little things mean a lot to Dick Kotis. Things like Mud Bugs, Jitterbugs, Hawaiian Wigglers and Hula Poppers.

No, Kotis does not turn out to creepy crawlies nor does he specialize in Oriental diseases. He is president of the Fred Arbogast Co., which just may be the largest manufacturer of artificial fishing baits in the world.

Kotis won't make the claim flat-out, he says, because most lure companies are privately owned and tight lipped about their volume.

But the Akron company has shipped millions of lures from its small plant since the late Fred Arbogast first marketed the Tin Liz, a bait he designed in his spare time while working for a local rubber company.

Arbogast's line consists of 24 different baits, a total that hardly does justice to the company's growth since the one-lure days of its founding in 1930. If you add up various colors and sizes of its two dozen products, a fisherman has a staggering array of 1,800 possible combinations from which to choose.

And that does not include lures manufactured by two Arbogast subsidiaries.

The Jitterbug is the lure that made Arbogast famous. A topwater bait, it is the company's alltime best seller. Coming on strong, however, is something called the Mud-Bug, a deep diving plug that resembles a broad, chunky minnow with a flat metal lip that digs for the bottom on the retrieve. The Mud-Bug, introduced four years ago, was Arbogast's top bait last year.

Kotis is not your typical company president. Predictably, he is the number one fan of his firm's products. But to retain that distinction, and more important, to test and improve Arbogast lures, Kotis spends about 180 days a year on the water, fishing some of the continent's best rivers and lakes, from South America to the Arctic.

From all that travel since taking over at Arbogast in 1959, Kotis has drawn more than a few observations about the sport of fresh and salt water fishing.

For one thing, he notes, fishermen are changing. "They are becoming more sports-minded than meat-minded." In spite of the growing popularity of competitive angling, he says, "most people are more willing than ever to have a good time catching, say, a few white bass on light, sporty tackle instead of trying to fill a garbage can full of fish. Big stringers are becoming obscene to many fishermen."

Thanks to a more scientific approach to sportfishing, aided by the development of electronic fishing aids, fishermen "are getting smarter," Kotis said.

Trends in lures are changing to meet the needs of the "new" angler who adapts his techniques to changing conditions of weather, water clarity, depth, temperature and related factors, he says.

Newest developments in artificial baits are the combination of hard plastic plug with soft plastic tail. And still to come but in the works, Kotis says, is a lure that will give off chemical "artificial light" and perhaps change colors according to the depths at which it is fished.

Winnipeg Jets Rip Cincinnati Stingers

WINNIPEG (AP) — Anders Hedberg scored two goals and goalie Joe Daley registered his second shutout in pacing the Winnipeg Jets to a 7-0 World Hockey Association triumph over the Cincinnati Stingers Tuesday night.

The Jets broke the game open in the first period with four goals—three on power plays. Ulf Nilsson, Veli-Pekka Ketola, Mats Lindh, Norm Beaudin and Peter Sullivan also scored as the Jets posted their fourth victory in six games.

Daley made 22 saves before a crowd of 8,552 at the Jets' home opener.

Circleville Athletic Boosters To Meet

Circleville Athletic Booster Club will meet 8 p.m. tonight in the high school cafeteria where members and fans will view films of the Wilmington and Miami Trace football games.

CHS grid coach Larry Cook will present the program. Also at this meeting those persons who have purchased booster jackets may get them.

CONNORS — Jimmy Connors, playing in his first Davis Cup Tennis Tournament, makes leaping return of the ball in Tucson, Arizona, as he hits it back to his opponent, Humphrey Hose, of Venezuela. After an erratic start, Connors won the second match of the tournament with scores of 6-4, 6-1, 6-3, to give the United States a 2-0 lead over Venezuela.

Curtis Says Raiders Have Tough Defense

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Oakland Raiders were able to do what nobody else has this season, stopped Isaac Curtis. But they still lost to the undefeated Cincinnati Bengals.

"I don't appreciate this kind of weather much," brooded the Southern Californian, Curtis, who caught no passes against Oakland Sunday in the Cincinnati 14-10 victory despite the cold, driving rain.

Oakland nearly shut off the passing game for Cincinnati, allowing only 75 yards while the New England Patriots the week before game up 272 yards. Oakland allowed no aerial touchdowns either.

Anderson had proudly proclaimed the week before: "Most teams establish a running game to pass; we pass to run."

Anderson was intercepted four times by Oakland, three times by the secondary and once by linebacker Phil Villapiano, on a 20-yard play action toss to Curtis down the right sideline.

"It was a poorly thrown pass," said Anderson. "I can't fault the receiver when I throw it behind him."

Curtis was surprised by the interception. He had his hands on the ball and slung it backward into the arms of the linebacker.

"I didn't even see it," said Curtis. "I was out of bounds then I saw everybody running the other way."

The Oakland secondary was a little bit of home for Curtis, in fact, more than enough.

"I know the whole secondary very well," said Curtis. "They all live around me on the West Coast. I see them a lot and we work out together."

Oakland saddled the leading Bengals receiver with double, and at times triple coverage, when he went deep.

"It might have looked like Kenny was overthrowing me, but he wasn't said Curtis, who caught 16 passes for 321 yards and four touchdowns in the four previous games.

"I was slowing down and late getting there" trying to shake the coverage of Ohio State rookie Neal Colzie and veteran defensive backs George Atkinson and Jack Tatum.

All three snagged errant Anderson passes.

Fortunately for Cincinnati, the defense had a big day snagging four of Ken Stabler's passes, one of them a 51-yard touchdown gallop by another Californian, rookie Marvin Cobb. Cobb had two interceptions on the day.

That, combined with four stops of major Oakland drives by the defense prompted Coach Paul Brown to say "The defense was our pride and joy."

Cincinnati goes to Atlanta this week for a game with the Falcons. The two clubs have met only once before in regular season play. Atlanta won that game 9-6 in 1971.

LE Volleyball Team Defeats Fairfield Union

Bosox Beat Reds 7-6 In 12; Finale Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — After three days of rain, they finally played baseball at Fenway Park. And, boy, was it worth waiting for.

With all the drama of Broadway and the wallop of a Hollywood ending, the Boston Red Sox defeated the Cincinnati Reds 7-6 in 12 tension-packed innings Tuesday night and set the stage for tonight's seventh World Series game.

"They will be talking about that game for years to come," said Cincinnati's Pete Rose after the Red Sox tied this incredible World Series at three games apiece. "This game was the best advertisement for baseball you could have."

Rose, who never enjoys losing a game, nevertheless enjoyed playing in the "Green Monster" thriller.

"When he came up to bat in the 10th, Rose leaned over and said to me, 'Wow, this is some kind of game,'" said Boston catcher Carlton Fisk. "I agreed with him. You couldn't ask for a better game."

Fisk ended the wild affair as it should have been ended— with a leadoff home run in the 12th. The ball jumped off Fisk's bat and sailed into the left-field foul pole, bringing the roaring crowd at Fenway to its feet and the Red Sox players streaming onto the soggy field.

"It was a sinker down and in," said Fisk of the home run pitch from Cincinnati reliever Pat Darcy, the eighth Reds' pitcher of the game. "I knew the ball was either going to go foul or be a home run. Since the wind was blowing out, I was afraid the ball might hook around the pole. In fact, I bet the wind took the thing about 15 feet closer to the line than it should have been and it wound up hitting the pole just before going around it."

Fisk's blow was the most dramatic of the night because it was the final shot fired at Fenway. But there were many other moments of gorgeous high tension that kept everyone stuck to their seats and television sets.

Washed out of three straight starts by a long-winded storm, the Reds at last were poised for a knockout punch of the Red Sox in game No. 6. But it was Boston that got in the first punches, scoring three quick runs on Fred Lynn's homer into the right-center field seats in the first inning.

It seemed that it would be enough for Luis Tiant, the way Boston's ace was pitching for the first four innings. He gave up no runs and only two hits and appeared to be well on his way toward a third victory in the crazy, mixed-up series.

It wasn't to be, however. Tiant showed he was only human in the fifth when he gave up three runs, two on a triple by Ken Griffey. His imperfection became more obvious when George Foster unloaded a two-run double in the Cincinnati seventh and Cesar Geronimo laced a home run into the rightfield seats in the eighth.

Geronimo's wallop finished Tiant and gave the Reds a 6-3 lead. With Pedro Borbon pitching overpowering baseball in relief, the Big Red Machine seemed to be driving toward its first World Series title since 1940.

But as everyone soon found out, the game was far from over.

Borbon gave up a leadoff single to Lynn and a walk to Rico Petrocelli. The reliever was taken out of the game in favor of Rawly Eastwick and the Fenway crowd of 35,205 buzzed.

Cincinnati's outstanding youngster quieted the Boston customers by striking out Dwight Evans and getting Rick Burleson on a fly ball. Then he went to a 2-2 count on pinch hitter Bernie Carbo before the former Cincinnati player blasted a game-tying homer into the center field stands, more than 400 feet away.

"It was a fastball over the plate," Carbo said of the key pitch from Eastwick. "I was just trying to make contact in that spot and not strike out, so I stepped out of the box a couple of times to help relax myself. All I was trying to do was just put the ball in play someplace."

The house came down when Carbo hit it out. And the benchwarmer had a ball running around the bases, applauding himself as he enjoyed every second of his journey toward home. When he sauntered around third, he gave Rose a friendly needle.

"I said something like, 'Don't you wish you were as strong as me,' and he just laughed because we were real good friends when I was with the Reds. I wasn't trying to insult him or anything. I just was too excited. I was terribly thrilled."

With the ardent cheers of the Red Sox faithful still ringing in the air, the Boston bunch came back with more fireworks in the ninth. They loaded the bases with none out. The noise level reached new heights.

"We thought for sure we should have won it then," said Fisk.

But Boston didn't. Lynn lofted a fly ball to Foster along the left field line and the Cincinnati outfielder gunned down Denny Doyle at home for a double play. Then Petrocelli grounded out and the game went into extra innings.

The Reds had the opportunity to put the Red Sox away but were turned back by an almost unbelievable play by Evans in right in the 11th. With a man on first, Joe Morgan hit a shot that appeared almost certainly headed for home run territory, but the graceful young outfielder speared the ball near the seats and fired back into the infield to complete a double play.

"It was the best catch I've ever seen," said Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson.

That catch saved Boston for the 12th, when Fisk delivered his sudden thunder. The broadshouldered catcher leaped in the air when the ball hit the pole, and he joyfully streaked around the bases. When he finished his rounds, there was a mob of fans as well as teammates to welcome him home.

Grambling Retains Poll Lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Grambling, unbeaten in six games this season, has strengthened its hold on the No. 1 spot in the weekly Associated Press college division football poll.

The Tigers, who beat Mississippi Valley 38-22 last Saturday and visit Jackson State in their next game, received 34 of 45 first place votes from a nationwide poll of sports writers and sportscasters released Tuesday.

While Grambling drew 431 points out of a possible 450, second-place Western Kentucky landed two first place ballots and 353 points. Texas A&I, which polled three No. 1 votes and 339 points, was ranked third.

Eastern Kentucky, with 233 points, narrowly grabbed the fourth place despite a first place vote, only three points ahead of North Dakota and Boise State, who tied for fifth. North Dakota drew three first place votes while Eastern Kentucky and Boise State got none.

Western Kentucky and Eastern Kentucky meet this weekend and the result could break up the logjam in the second through fifth spots.

Wittenberg was rated seventh followed by Henderson State, Northern Michigan and Montana.

Rounding out the top 15 were Idaho State, plunging from fourth following a 19-7 setback to Montana; Ithaca, Kentucky State, Delaware and Lehigh. Ithaca received two firstplace votes and Delta State grabbed one No. 1 vote but failed to draw enough support to gain the rankings.

Lehigh, which downed Delaware 35-23 last Saturday, made its first appearance in the poll. Delaware was rated No. 8 last week.

Reds Put It All On Line Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — Unshakeable Joe Morgan sat amid a sea of gloomy faces, unwilling to concede that the Boston Red Sox are riding a wave of momentum going into tonight's World Series showdown.

"We're not down," said the intense Cincinnati second baseman. "We've got a Don Gullett going and they don't have another Luis Tiant."

As crushing as Tuesday night's 7-6 defeat in 12 innings was, the Reds refuse to quell their confident tones.

"They beat us," said scrappy Pete Rose. "Now Bill Lee has got to beat us. I'm not worried about him. I don't worry about any pitcher. I just take my hacks."

Boston catcher Carlton Fisk decided the superbly-played thriller with a leadoff homer in the 12th inning, victimizing young Pat Darcy for his first loss since June 29.

"I have no excuses," Darcy said through glazed eyes. "I tried to get the ball low—and it got up. I thought it was going to be foul. Then it hit the foul pole."

The game-clinching homer capped one of the most dramatic games in Series history.

"I couldn't believe it," said Rose, stirred by the pulsating duel that saw momentum reversed almost inning-by-inning. "Boston played like they have magnets in their gloves. That game had more ups and downs than any game I've ever been in. That was the only way that game could have been decided."

The rousing Red Sox victory sets the stage for tonight's collision between Gullett, Cincinnati's flame-throwing left-hander, and Lee, who was highly effective against the Reds in Game Two 10 days ago.

The Reds, bridesmaids in three World Series in the last 14 years but denied a world championship since 1940, put it all on the line tonight.

"There ain't no more talking after tomorrow," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson. "Tomorrow is it." Morgan likes the Reds' chances. "I think we're the best ball club and I think we'll prove it," said the feisty 5-foot-7 scrapper who watched Red Sox right fielder Dwight Evans run down a long Morgan drive in the 11th inning, triggering a threat-killing double play.

"The best catch I've ever seen," said Anderson.

Earlier the Reds had rallied from a 3-0 deficit, turning on tormentor Luis Tiant for a three-run fifth-inning rally.

Cincinnati went ahead 5-3 in the seventh with George Foster doubling in a pair of runs. Cesar Geronimo had a solo homer in the eighth, giving the Reds a three-run cushion, but the Red Sox battled back.

"A good ball club never quits and they've shown us that," said Morgan.

Ex-Red Bernie Carbo tied it in the ninth with a three-run pinch homer off Rawly Eastwick, one of eight Cincinnati pitchers.

The 12 pitchers employed helped set a World Series record set by St. Louis and Boston in 1967 and tied by Oakland and the New York Mets in 1973.

Fishing Lures Big Business

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Little things mean a lot to Dick Kotis. Things like Mud Bugs, Jitterbugs, Hawaiian Wigglers and Hula Poppers.

No, Kotis does not turn on to creepy crawlies nor does he specialize in Oriental diseases. He is president of the Fred Arbogast Co., which just may be the largest manufacturer of artificial fishing baits in the world.

Kotis won't make the claim flat-out, he says, because most lure companies are privately owned and tight lipped about their volume.

But the Akron company has shipped millions of lures from its small plant since the late Fred Arbogast first marketed the Tin Liz, a bait he designed in his spare time while working for a local rubber company.

Arbogast's line consists of 24 different baits, a total that hardly does justice to the company's growth since the one-lure days of its founding in 1930. If you add up various colors and sizes of its two dozen products, a fisherman has a staggering array of 1,800 possible combinations from which to choose.

And that does not include lures manufactured by two Arbogast subsidiaries.

The Jitterbug is the lure that made Arbogast famous. A topwater bait, it is the company's alltime best seller. Coming on strong, however, is something called the Mud-Bug, a deep diving plug that resembles a broad, chunky minnow with a flat metal lip that digs for the bottom on the retrieve. The Mud-Bug, introduced four years ago, was Arbogast's top bait last year.

Kotis is not your typical company president. Predictably, he is the number one fan of his firm's products. But to retain that distinction, and more important, to test and improve Arbogast lures, Kotis spends about 180 days a year on the water, fishing some of the continent's best rivers and lakes, from South America to the Arctic.

From all that travel since taking over at Arbogast in 1959, Kotis has drawn more than a few observations about the sport of fresh and salt water fishing.

For one thing, he notes, fishermen

are changing. "They are becoming more sports-minded than meat-minded." In spite of the growing popularity of competitive angling, he says, "most people are more willing than ever to have a good time catching, say, a few white bass on light, sporty tackle instead of trying to fill a garbage can full of fish. Big stringers are becoming obscene to many fishermen."

Thanks to a more scientific approach to sportfishing, aided by the development of electronic fishing aids, fishermen "are getting smarter," Kotis said.

Trends in lures are changing to meet the needs of the "new" angler who adapts his techniques to changing conditions of weather, water clarity, depth, temperature and related factors, he says.

Newest developments in artificial baits are the combination of hard plastic plug with soft plastic tail. And still to come but in the works, Kotis says, is a lure that will give off chemical "artificial light" and perhaps change colors according to the depths at which it is fished.

State Senate Turns Down Ban On Doves

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State senators, under intensive pressure from Ohio hunters, have defeated a bill that would have outlawed the hunting of mourning doves in the state.

The first half of the split season on doves ended last Friday. The second part is scheduled to resume Nov. 14 and run through Dec. 6.

The bill was inspired by preservationists and legislators resentful of the action of the Ohio Wildlife Division which approved the state's first mourning dove season in more than 60 years last summer despite questions about its authority to do so. It was defeated 19-11.

Even if had been approved, the ban would not have affected the 1975 season, since most legislation does not become law until 90 days after the governor affixes his signature to the bill.

Sen. Donald L. Woodland, D-16 Columbus, said the dove had become a "pawn in a political issue" pitting the legislature against a state department.

"It is a game bird and it gets into Ohio and it's a songbird, he argued, urging defeat of the bill.

Another senator, Ben Gaeth, R-1 Defiance, claimed the bill was "the foot in the door to eliminate hunting in the State of Ohio.

Sen. David L. Headley, D-28 Barberton, said the vote on the ban would determine "whether our administrative agencies could set the (hunting) seasons...or whether the legislature has that responsibility."

OIC Chief Urges End To Bureau

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gregory J. Stebbins, chairman of the Ohio Industrial Commission (OIC), Tuesday asked the Ohio Legislature to abolish the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation because of overlapping authority of the two agencies.

Stebbins told a special committee of the Ohio House and Senate which is investigating the workmen's compensation system that the overlap hampers efficient administration of the workmen's compensation system.

Stebbins and Kenneth E. Krouse, administrator of the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, were the only witnesses in the two-hour session.

Krouse told the committee he plans to form a committee of attorneys to review the law which established his bureau. He said he hopes to modernize the bureau and eliminate half the forms which now plague claimants.

"There's too much paper but not necessarily enough quality," he said.

Committee Chairman Sen. David L. Headley, D-28, Barberton, said the two will be asked to testify again later. He said the committee only wanted descriptions of their jobs at Tuesday's hearing.

CONNORS — Jimmy Connors, playing in his first Davis Cup Tennis Tournament, makes leaping return of the ball in Tucson, Arizona, as he hits it back to his opponent, Humphrey Hose, of Venezuela. After an erratic start, Connors won the second match of the tournament with scores of 6-4, 6-1, 6-3, to give the United States a 2-0 lead over Venezuela.

Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion, added that the action by the wildlife division was the "absolute reverse of the legislative intent" in creating the state agency.

The House passed the bill on Sept. 11. But by then strong initial support for the ban had wilted under highpower lobbying by hunting and gun clubs.

"I do not feel this is the first step toward a communist takeover as some of my letters have indicated," Headley said in a reference to the campaign against the measure.

LE Volleyball Team Defeats Fairfield Union

The Logan Elm High School varsity volleyball team defeated visiting Mid State opponent Fairfield Union 15-12 and 15-11 Tuesday.

Monica Payne was the top server with six points. LE Coach Kathy Thompson credited a "good overall team effort" with the win.

The varsity has a 2-4 Mid State record. The LE reserves lost 16-14 and 15-7. Thursday the volleyballers will host Liberty Union in a Mid State game starting at 6 p.m. in McDowell gymnasium.

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): Don't crowd yourself during the early hours, so that you become overly fatigued. Some interesting situations after noon will demand your complete alertness, good judgment.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): Vigor must be accompanied by certainty; enthusiasm by ability and know-how. Don't attempt any undertaking without sufficient knowledge of all factors involved.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): You will need a good sense of perspective to cope with this day's intricacies and complexities. Your innate ingenuity should help, however.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Muster your best efforts for the "trying" moments — even though they may be few — and you can breeze through most of the day. Put your weight behind solid undertakings.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Put everything in proper order, lest the day become chaotic. There are many advantages for the seeking. Science and research especially slated for advancement.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Set sights calculatingly on your target — and aim straight! The time is ripe for getting the things you want.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Do not hesitate to advance an unusual idea if you have given it proper thought. But do take into consideration the previous plans of associates — and possible opposition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): "Retreat" is a word not usually found in your vocabulary, but it could be used strategically now to reinforce strength, improve tactics.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Procrastination in facing a "big" problem or undertaking will pile up complications. Bear this in mind and go about this day emphasizing your more practical and ingenious side.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): If you keep matters in line, you should be able to make some smart, progressive moves now. Look into others' ideas and tactics. You may be able to incorporate some in your own program.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): A day in which it will be important to use your best judgment. If, on second thought, an idea or plan seems impractical, don't waste time trying to MAKE it workable.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Certain changes are in order, others are NOT. Don't buck the tide needlessly, nor penetrate too deeply into unknown waters before you have the know-how and the facts.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with an extraordinarily well-balanced attitude toward life and a great sense of justice. In dealings of any sort, your appraisals are astute and you show remarkable clarity of vision. You can rise a great heights, no matter how humble your beginnings yet, along the way, often lack confidence in yourself and fear the criticism of others. Curb this trait. It only stands in your way. Your artistry and love of beauty are outstanding. Birthdate of: George Saintsbury, Eng. author, literary critic; Johnny Carson, TV personality.

Tony Dorsett Named AP Top Back

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Collecting records and honors is nothing new to University of Pittsburgh running back Tony Dorsett.

Two years ago he was named an All-American, and his 1,568 yards rushing that year set a National Collegiate Athletic Association record for freshmen. It also gave him the Pitt singleseason mark by more than 600 yards.

In one of his early games, he set another NCAA freshman record and another Pitt standard by going 265 yards against Northwestern. That performance earned him Back of the Week honors from The Associated Press.

Now he's improving on his own records. Last Saturday against Army, he ran for 268 yards and four touchdowns, a performance that once again earned AP Back of the Week honors.

"The last two weeks Tony has run better, I believe, than he's ever run before," Pitt Coach Johnny Majors said Tuesday.

"I think he will continue to do this because he's got a heart to go with his talent and the legs to go with his heart."

Dorsett, who gained 1,004 yards in his sophomore campaign, may be hitting the holes a little harder this season. He's gained 20 to 25 pounds since his freshman year.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — Four years ago, Sandra Elkin, a newcomer to Buffalo, N.Y., approached the management of public TV station WNED there with an idea for a weekly halfhour talk show for and about women.

This year, her idea, now bearing the series title of "Woman," began its fourth season on WNED and its third year on the national public TV hookup of the Public Broadcasting Service — PBS.

The series, which discusses topics ranging from rape to shared child custody, has had as guests some fairly big names in the feminist movement, among them writers Gloria Steinem and Susan Brownmiller.

It also has lesser-known guests, such as two women inmates of a prison in Missouri. And even a male midwife has appeared on the show.

All but two women-in-prison shows were taped in Buffalo.

And one of Mrs. Elkin's biggest desires is to get enough money to take the show to other parts of America, showing the changing times for women as well as discussing them.

But the fact the series she produces and moderates even is on the air is a tribute both to her determination and WNED's willingness to give a chance to an idea of someone who'd never even worked in TV before.

Mrs. Elkin, who moved to the Buffalo area in 1969 from Vermont with her two sons and her husband, only had worked backstage in summer theater productions before she proposed her "Woman" series to WNED.

What triggered the idea, she said, was a series of discussions with other women in her area about the lack of information of matters of great interest to women, particularly health issues.

"I just wanted something straightforward," she said. "I just wanted to say, 'All right, here's the subject and let's just tell what we can about it.'"

Her proposal so impressed WNED program director James L. Hutchinson Jr. that he got the station to bankroll the series (he declined to say how much the first 24-show season cost) from its own limited funds.

The list of proposed topics expanded, as did viewership of the show. Mrs. Elkin says the Eastern Educational Network began running the series six months after it began, and PBS picked it up a year later.

But Hutchinson says WNED wasn't reimbursed for the cost of the series until last season when, under a new PBS costsharing plan, stations airing the series paid a prorated portion of the tab.

This year, PBS says, 142 public TV licensees put up a total of $198,461 for 52 "Woman" programs. Each program is transmitted nationally by PBS at 10:30 p.m. EDT on Tuesdays.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — Four years ago, Sandra Elkin, a newcomer to Buffalo, N.Y., approached the management of public TV station WNET there with an idea for a weekly halfhour talk show for and about women.

This year, her idea, now bearing the series title of "Woman," began its fourth season on WNET and its third year on the national public TV hookup of the Public Broadcasting Service — PBS. The series, which discusses topics ranging from rape to shared child custody, has had as guests some fairly big names in the feminist movement, among them writers Gloria Steinem and Susan Brownmiller.

It also has lesser-known guests, such as two women inmates of a prison in Missouri. And even a male midwife has appeared on the show.

All but two women-in-prison shows were taped in Buffalo. And one of Mrs. Elkin's biggest desires is to get enough money to take the show to other parts of America, showing the changing times for women as well as discussing them.

But the fact the series she produces and moderates even is on the air is a tribute both to her determination and WNET's willingness to give a chance to an idea of someone who'd never even worked in TV before.

Mrs. Elkin, who moved to the Buffalo area in 1969 from Vermont with her two sons and her husband, only had worked backstage in summer theater productions before she proposed her "Woman" series to WNET.

What triggered the idea, she said, was a series of discussions with other women in her area about the lack of information of matters of great interest to women, particularly health issues.

"I just wanted something straightforward," she said. "I just wanted to say, 'All right, here's the subject and let's just tell what we can about it.'"

Her proposal so impressed WNET program director James L. Hutchinson Jr. that he got the station to bankroll the series (he declined to say how much the first 24-show season cost) from its own limited funds.

The list of proposed topics expanded, as did viewership of the show. Mrs. Elkin says the Eastern Educational Network began running the series six months after it began, and PBS picked it up a year later.

But Hutchinson says WNET wasn't reimbursed for the cost of the series until last season when, under a new PBS costsharing plan, stations airing the series paid a pro-rated portion of the tab.

This year, PBS says, 142 public TV licensees put up a total of $198,461 for 52 "Woman" programs. Each program is transmitted nationally by PBS at 10:30 p.m. EDT on Tuesdays.

Senate Overrides Right-To-Strike Veto

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes' veto of right-to-strike legislation has been overridden by the Ohio Senate, but, in a more meaningful test, majority Democrats failed to nullify Rhodes' rejection of a fire warning bill.

The public employees collective bargaining plan must still be acted on Nov. 12 by the House, where Democrats do not have a veto-proof majority and Republicans are expected to sustain the governor.

In the case of the so-called Tawing Inferno bill, however, Senate Democrats had a chance to complete legislative override action and bypass a governor for the first time since May 16, 1962 during the term of Michael V. DiSalle. Rhodes has never been overridden.

In a busy one-day session spanning three hours, the Senate also approved extensive state regulation of electric rate fuel adjustments and increased interest rates on small loans. Both measures were returned to the House for concurrence on amendments.

The fuel bill requires the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio to monitor fuel adjustment clauses which currently allow electric companies to pass on their cost increases to customers on a monthly basis, virtually without regulation. It was approved 31-0.

The thrust of the bill, according to Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, is to require that PUCO, the state regulatory body, determine that the passthroughs are justified. The fuel clause would be reviewed by PUCO every six months under the bill, and electric companies unable to verify their passthroughs could be ordered to refund overcharges or have their adjustment rate disallowed.

The small loan bill also passed easily, 25-6, despite extended debate over its impact on poor borrowers who patronize finance companies licensed under existing law.

With final approval of the new plan, these companies can lift their allowable loan ceiling from $2,000 to $3,000 and lengthen repayment periods. The interest rates would increase from 22 per cent to 26 per cent on loan principal between $500 and $1,000 and from 17.5 per cent to 22 per cent on principal between $1,000 and $2,000. The maximum interest on the first $500 borrowed would remain at 28 per cent.

Opponents like Sen. Charles L. Butts, D-23 Cleveland, argued that rates on bank loans are generally far lower. Low income borrowers seek out small loan companies he said, "perhaps because they are more susceptible to the cute jingles and other advertisements on the mass media."

"I guess the bill's going to pass," Butts added, "it doesn't affect any of us."

The bill Democrats failed to override would have required smoke detector devices in existing high rise apartment buildings and condominiums which exceed 75 feet in height.

Although 21 Democrats were on the floor, majority leaders could garner only 16 votes to override to 15 to sustain the veto. Twenty votes are needed to meet the mandated three-fifths majority.

It was a stunning defeat for the majority which had been buoyed by the Republican support in the House for the successful override of the bill in the lower chamber Sept. 12. The House met in scaled down "skeleton session" Tuesday and took no major action.

Sen. Anthony J. Celebrezze Jr., D-25 Cleveland, said the smoke detectors were "an attempt to give early warning to save lives" in residential buildings where fire ladders generally cannot reach upper stories.

In his veto message, Rhodes said the bill was too costly, technically deficient and discriminatory because it did not include office buildings, hotels, and other structures under 75 feet. No high rise apartments are required to have fire warning devices under provisions of the Ohio Building Code.

Celebrezze said the cost of smoke detectors was about $60 per unit plus installation— "hardly prohibitive when we view it in the overall context of saving lives."

But in the end lobbying apartment owners who warned of sharp rent increases, apparently eroded support for the override.

All 10 Republicans present voted to sustain the governor, joined by Sens. Tony Hall, D-6 Dayton; Neal F. Zimmers, D-5 Dayton; Robert E. O'Shaughnessy, D-15 Columbus; Donald L. Woodland, D-16 Columbus, and Donald J. Pease, D-13 Oberlin.

Democrats overrode the vetoed collective bargaining proposal to repeal Ohio's antistrike Ferguson Act, 20-11. One party member, Sen. Gene Slagle, D-26 Galion, broke ranks and voted with Republicans to sustain the governor.

House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, said the House would attempt to follow suit, but admitted Democratic chances were slim. They lack by one vote the override majority.

In other action, the Senate: —Defeated 19-11 a bill to outlaw the hunting of mourning doves in Ohio.

—Approved 28-3 a bill that would provide permanent hunting and trapping licenses for the regular fee to Ohioans 65 or older. It was returned to the House for concurrence.

—Approved legislation authorizing the sale of 82 acres of state land in Perry Township, Stark County to the Stark County Area Joint Vocational School District.

Chillicothe Park Gets Superintendent

FRED FAGERGREN

Fred J. Fagergren, a National Park Service ranger-archeologist currently stationed in Iowa, has been appointed superintendent of Mound City Group National Monument, an NPS area near Chillicothe.

Acting Midwest Regional Director Robert L. Giles, announcing the appointment, said Fagergren will assume his Ohio duties Oct. 26, filling a vacancy created by the appointment of William C. "Bill" Birdsell as superintendent of the Cuyahoga Valley National Recreation Area in the Cleveland-Akron locality.

Since May of 1973, Fagergren, 30, has been stationed at Effigy Mounds National Monument near McGregor in northeastern Iowa.

Fagergren became a permanent employee of the National Park Service Feb. 14, 1972, at Florissant Fossil Beds National Monument in Colorado.

Assignments since then have taken him to Bent's Old Fort National Historic Site in Colorado, Rocky Mountain National Park, Grand Canyon National Park, and National Capital Parks in the Washington, D.C. area.

At Mound City Group National Monument, Fagergren will administer an area which preserves remains of a Hopewell Indian culture dating back to about the time of Christ.

Fagergren and his wife, Donna, have three children: Fred G., Heather and Jeremy.

Thieves Fail To Enter Downtown Sohio Station

Thieves attempted to break into another Circleville business Tuesday night or Wednesday morning, this time failing to force the side door to the Downtown Sohio service station on the corner of Main and Scioto Sts.

Circleville Police are still investigating thefts at the B.F. Goodrich store and Maurice's Market and the attempted entry of Sentry Hardware, all of which occurred Monday night or Tuesday morning.

Jim Cottrell, an employee of the service station owned by Clyde Kohn, told Police Ptl. Ron Smith that he discovered the entry attempt while opening the station Wednesday morning.

Ptl. Smith found about 30 pry marks on the door facing on the east side entrance to the office.

The facing had been pulled away from the building.

Police Ptl. Mike Eberhard recovered a 20-inch boy's bicycle stolen from the home of Leonard Glispie, 134 Nicholas Dr., Tuesday afternoon.

However, police are still searching for a CB radio antenna tubing, which was taken at the same time as the bike. The tubing is valued at $40.

Randy Weller, an employee of Jim Houseman Ford, Inc., told police that thieves took two magnetic signs with the name of the company from a car parked in the new car lot.

The theft occurred Oct. 15, he said.

Liquor Permit Issued, 2 File Applications

Ohio Department of Liquor Control Director Clifford E. Reich announced that applications for new liquor permits and transfers of location, ownership or stock are now being processed by the department.

Larry C. Stanley, owner of Gold Cliff Tavern, Route 1, U.S. Route 23 south, Pickaway Twp., was issued permits D-1-2 for the sale of 3.2 per cent beer, high-powered beer and wine for on-premises consumption and carry-out.

Issued Oct. 17, the new permit is issued on a quota basis according to population and upon the findings of the Liquor Control's thorough investigation on the applicant and the intended permit premises.

A Liquor Control Commission regulation sets the quotas for each type of retail permit which can be issued for the population area concerned.

Application was filed Oct. 2 by the Walnut Creek Pike Corp. owner of Jim's Super Duper, 1280 N. Court St., for a C-1 permit for the sale of 3.2 per cent beer for carry-out.

Application also was filed Oct. 14 by Paul Bendoff, owner of South Bloomfield Cafe, 5010 Walnut St., South Bloomfield for a D-3A permit.

A D-3A permit allows a D-3 permit holder to remain open until 2:30 a.m.

"Persons who have objections to permits under consideration should inform the department immediately," Reich said. "The Department bases its judgment to issue or deny on the quota of permits allowed in the area according to population and the findings of the investigation. If the applicant is qualified and there is an opening, the department is required by law to issue the permit."
